BELGIUM LAYS DOWN ARMS, BRITISH PLAN WITHDRAWAL

INCREASE DEBT AND TAXES IN DEFENSE PLAN

$3,000,000,000 to Be Added To National Limitation On Obligations.

PRESIDENT APPROVES

Annual Tax Burden Raised by $600,000,000 to Retire Bonds Under Program.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Treasury officials and congressional leaders joined today in drafting a presidentially-approved "pay as you go" national defense plan proposing that congress immediately boost the national debt limit by $3,000,000,000 and increase the tax burden by $600,000,000 annually to retire the additional debt.

Special national defense bonds would also be issued under the plan, the taxes being spread over a five-year period to eventually liquidate them.

The program was formulated by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, Chairman Doughton of North Carolina of the house ways and means committee; Harrison of the senate finance committee; Rep. Cooper of Tennessee, head of the ways and means tax sub-committee; under Secretary of the Treasury Daniel Bell; Internal Revenue Commissioner Guy T. Helvering; Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Sullivan and a member of the joint congressional committee of internal revenue taxation.

The program calls for increasing the present $45,000,000,000 public debt limit to $48,000,000,000.

It also provides for issuance of special national defense obligations which will have a maturity of five years. These special national defense obligations will be liquidated by increased taxes which are expected to yield between $600,000,000 and $700,000,000 annually over a five year period.

The program was worked out at a conference in Morgenthau's office lasting nearly three hours. Morgenthau submitted the plan to the president who at once gave his approval. Both Doughton and Harrison said they will convene their committees immediately to translate the program into legislation.

The nature of the new taxes will be worked out by the two committees.

In a joint statement the conferees said:

"(We) have agreed to ask congress at this session to consider legislation to provide funds for

NEAR GOAL IN $6,000 DRIVE

Workers Report $4,230 In as War Relief Workers Push Campaign In County.

Mansfield and Richland county were only $1,770 short of their goal in the drive for a $6,000 war relief fund today, and leaders were confident of reaching the top figure this week.

Mansfield has contributed $3,428 to date on her share of $4,000 while Shelby has raised $802 on a $1,200 quota and "has the remainder in sight" according to Shelby workers.

The remainder of the county is slow in coming in, O. D. Meese, general chairman of the drive, said today, and believed that Mansfield and Shelby would have to go over their individual quotas to make up for shortages in the outlying rural districts.

Five groups in Mansfield have already reached their quotas—the independent retail stores, the professional group, insurance and printing groups and the Mansfield undertakers. Several of the larger industries have not yet turned in their contributions, but are expected to within a couple of days, swelling the total considerably.

One of the largest contributions yesterday came from the small congregation of the Apostolic Christian church. It collected $100, which was its second gift for war relief purposes, the first one having been sent directly to Zurich, Switzerland.

Quintuplets, Six Today, Made May 28 Notable Date in Callander

May 28th has come to mean one thing above all others: the anniversary of the birth of the only quintuplets to survive infancy—the Misses Dionne of Callander, Ontario. Today they are six years old. Fear of Invasion Shadowed Belgian King's Entire Life

(By International News Service)

At the age of 13 he did his father's bidding, put on a uniform and dug trenches under shell fire.

At the age of 39 as the fourth king in Belgium's independence—he surrendered his forces today to Germany.

At last King Leopold—son of the late King Albert, hero of the World war—had capitulated to the sinister shadow of invasion which darkened most of his life.

KING LEOPOLD III

Probably more than any other man in Europe, he lived in dread against the threat of aggression. Honored as the "youngest soldier at the front" during the World war, he was forced in 1937, just three years after he took the throne, to obtain from England a pledge to come to Belgium's aid should any future aggressor nation cross her frontier.

He succeeded to the throne after his father, Albert, plunged to his death while mountain-climbing in the Ardennes—where today some of the bitterest fighting of this war has raged.

Leopold had hardly recovered from his father's death when a few months later his bride, Queen Astrid, was killed in an automobile accident.

Three years later, he was forced by the inevitable tide of militarism to launch a policy of "aggressive neutrality." He demanded and received pledges from great European powers that the soil of little Belgium would never again be invaded.

In drastic and almost unbelievable contrast to his son and successor who surrendered his country to German invaders today after 18 days of battle, King Albert fought for his country's liberty for four long and bloody years against almost hopeless odds, fought heroically, fought brilliantly and fought dangerously.

He fought alone unaided by the Allies for a horrible seven days in 1914. He fought when there was almost no country to defend. He sent his 18½-year-old son into battle as a common soldier—the same son who surrendered today. He saw his wife—of her own volition—nurse the wounded under shellfire.

And thus he became, and is today in history, not just the late King Albert—but, proudly, Albert, the King of the Belgians. And his name became one of the brightest legends in the long, proud history of the monarchy.

QUINS REACH 6TH BIRTHDAY

Day Opens on Solemn Note As Sisters Pray for Peace on Earth.

(By International News Service)

CALLANDER, Ont.—The Dionne quintuplets were six years old today—six years old in a nation grimly at war. Instead of the exciting plans for a birthday party as in the past, the day opened on a more somber, more solemn note for the tots.

Five little heads were bowed before an improvised altar. Five shrill little voices were raised to "Le Bon Dieu" to plead:

"Deliver us, we beseech thee; O Lord, from all evils, past, present and to come; mercifully grant peace in our days that with thy help we may be always free from harm."

They struggled a little with the words, most of them strange for a six-year-old, and Father Victor Pilon smiled as he raised his hand to call down the blessings of the Almighty on these little innocents.

Later in the day, the quintuplets were to have a small family

FLYING HAZARD

Pilot Lands Plane in Field, Bitten by Dog.

DUBUQUE, Ia.—(AP)—Add hazards of flying—dog bites.

Republicans Pick Carroll in Exhibition of Close Harmony

In a display of harmony, the Richland county Republican central committee last night elected Ralph Carroll of Shelby chairman by acclamation and re-elected 22 of the 31 members of the county executive committee.

The executive committeemen were chosen again at the request of Ralhp Hardy, executive chairman, who also was granted his request for the naming of seven replacement committeemen by the committee itself. The central committee of 92 members usually elects the executive committeemen.

The Democratic central committee will meet at 8 p. m. today at the courthouse to elect officers and choose an executive committee. The session was called by G. A. Baer, chairman.

Two new members of the Republican executive committee elected last night were J. W. Selby, Madison township, and Charles Swanger, Shelby. Seven committee posts were left vacant to be filled by the committee when it organizes late this week.

Carroll, who is county juvenile officer, succeeds John Hess of Mansfield as central committee chairman. Hess was not a candidate for re-election because he recently was given a state sales tax examiner's job in the county.

Other committee officers chosen were Mrs. Elizabeth Grubaugh, Mansfield, re-elected secretary, and R. E. Sneeringer, Mansfield, vice chairman.

Executive committeemen named again were C. L. Shoup, Plymouth township; Glen Swanger, Shiloh; L. M. Alexander, Bellville; H. E. Hawley, Jackson township; Newell Smith, Washington township; Ralph Hardy and Aaron Davis, Madison township; Harvey Mullett, S. S. Stroup, and George Williams, Shelby; Earl McFarland, A. F. Porter, Judge C. J. Anderson, J. V. Will, J. E. Warrack, Charles Sonners, C. F. Fernyak, Stuart Cramer, Philip Wolfe, H. H. Schettler, Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, and Dale Jessop, all of Mansfield.

Members of the committee who must be replaced are James Bumpus, Butler; Dalten Divelbiss, Mansfield; C. E. Morris, Shelby; T. R. Barnes, W. H. Ferguson, C. F. Routzhan, and John Hess, Mansfield.

Adopting a suggestion of Atty. John L. Catlett, the central committee voted to meet monthly until after the November election. The group has had no regular meeting schedule. Chairman Carroll will name a committee

Leopold Orders Surrender After 18-Day Battle

English Admit Terrific Obstacles Bar Retirement Across Channel; Nazis Claim Further Success Against Strong French Resistance

(By Associated Press)

King Leopold of the Belgians ordered the unconditional surrender of his army today after an 18-day defense against the German juggernaut invasion, and British naval spokesmen hinted that the British expeditionary force was preparing to withdraw from the present Flanders battlefield.

It was not immediately indicated whether the British contemplated complete withdrawal from the continent or merely a shifting of their trapped armies south to aid France in her defense along the Somme river front.

The naval spokesmen said the British troops in Belgium would face terrific obstacles in attempting to retire across the channel.

The Royal Air Force and the fleet, they added, would have to hold off the Nazi "Luftwaffe" (air force) to cover the movement.

At the height of the furore created by King Leopold's sudden surrender, the German high command announced a new series of smashing Nazi successes.

Hitler's mechanized columns broke through strong French border fortifications "on a broad front," the high command said, and captured numerous towns and villages in a giant "squeeze" movement on the trapped Allied armies in Flanders.

The British cabinet quickly met at No. 10 Downing street to consider the grave consequences of the Belgian army's capitulation.

The Belgian monarch's decision to lay down arms came at the most critical hour in the struggle for mastery of the English channel.

Leopold's government in Paris, however, disavowed the 38-year-old monarch's order of capitulation and prepared to rally new fighting forces.

The Nazi high command reported its armies had driven to within six miles of Bruges, Belgium, and had partly broken Allied resistance in the battle of Artois and Flanders.

The German break-through, it said, was made north of Valenciennes.

Other Nazi hordes crossed the strategic Scheldt canal and captured Orchies and Douai, French towns south of Lille, the high command announced.

Foreign circles in Rome expected the Belgian surrender to hasten Italy's long-awaited entrance into the war—to help Germany "finish off" the Allies and win a share of the victor's spoils.

King Leopold's order, bitterly assailed by Premier Reynaud of France as given "in full battle" without even notifying the French and British, seriously exposed the Allies'

SECRET: Tank-Carrying Plane Revealed Hitler's New Weapon

(By United Press)

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y.—A German refugee told aeronautical engineers here today that the "secret weapon" Adolf Hitler was holding in reserve for the invasion of Great Britain consisted of a fleet of the world's largest airplanes, each capable of carrying a 30-ton tank.

The refugee, who fled Germany just before the outbreak of the war, said the planes were built in a camouflaged plant in the Black Forest, in the vicinity of his home.

He said 200 of the tank-carrying planes, larger than any of the commercial planes now in use in the United States, had been produced by September of last year.

The refugee said he feared reprisals for himself or members of his family if his name should be disclosed.

According to his story, the planes have a wing spread of 200 feet and are equipped with four motors, each of 1,200 horsepower. The tanks are taken aboard through a trap door in the bottom of the planes.

The "Kangaroo" planes, carrying 30-ton tanks, according to the informant, are similar in appearance to the German Fornier plane and the Pan-American flying boat.

The Pan-American clippers now lift a load of 42 gross tons into the air and this weight includes safety factors and other commercial installations that daring German designers apparently would discard.

The fuselage is a massive shell, the German said. The tank, or light field artillery piece, is rolled under the fuselage, then lifted through the trap door in its bottom by means of a portable hydraulic lift apparatus. The inside of the fuselage is equipped with fittings for the anchoring of the tank, or field piece.

When the tank or cannon is aboard, the trap door is closed, and the plane is then ready to be flown wherever needed. Upon landing, the artillery or tank is eased out.

CONDUCT SURVEY OF STATUS OF CITY'S COLORED

Negro Civic Association Backs Project; Ashland College Students Doing Work.

A survey of Mansfield colored population to determine the status of social, civic and industrial life in the community was under way today by the sociology department of Ashland college.

Sponsored by the Mansfield Negro Civic association, the survey is being conducted among Mansfield's colored population by sociology students under the direction of Dr. E. E. Jacobs, former president of the college and now head of the sociology department.

The survey which is expected to be completed within three months is being made at the request of the association which has taken up the study of the general living conditions of the race in the city, Edward Grace, president, said.

Similar in some respects to the recently completed government census but broader on scope, the survey will include a canvass of every colored family in Mansfield. Only answers to the various questions will be tallied and no names will be listed, Grace said.

Questions dealing with the population count of colored persons, their living conditions, vital statistics, industry and employment, delinquency and recreation, schooling, community organizations and churches and social agencies will be included in the survey.

A supplemental tabulation and study of unemployment colored youth between the ages of 16 and 24 is also being made in connection with the report.

The survey, when complete, is to be used by the association to develop a city-wide program to meet the needs of the colored race here, association leaders said.

Friendly House Plans Exercises For Kindergarten

A style show and graduation exercises for 31 kindergarten children will feature the annual Friendly House program to be held at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday in the settlement gymnasium, and marks the close of indoor activities until next fall.

The style show will be staged by girls of the various clubs and classes who will model their own garments they have made during their class work.

Diplomas will go to the 31 kindergarten children who have completed their work, and the Junior Association of Commerce will make its annual award to the most valuable boy and girl to the settlement during the past year.

Members of the Genie Players and Friendly House Players will combine to present a play, "The Flower of Pure Gold." The program is open to the public.

Correct Constipation Before—Not After!

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of emergency relief. Why let yourself suffer those dull lifeless days because of constipation, why bring on the need for emergency medicines, when there may be a far better way? That way is to KEEP regular by getting at the cause of the trouble.

If it's common constipation, due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, a pleasant, nutritious, ready-to-eat cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran—goes straight to the cause by supplying the "bulk" you need.

Eat this crunchy toasted cereal regularly, drink plenty of water, and see if you don't forget all about constipation. All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

GIRL POSTURE FAULTS LISTED

SEATTLE, Wash. —(U.P.)— Feminine posture, according to Elizabeth MacDonald, lecturer of New York City, can effectively—if unflatteringly—be divided into five classifications.

Any number of college girls, she said here, can be pegged as follows: (1) Collapsed stomach; (2) "Tummy-ache" posture; (3) Barrel shapes; (4) Stomach wrinkles; (5) Swallowed watermelon postures.

Miss MacDonald's college lectures have proved effective: Carefree, co-eds listen in silence while she listed what's wrong with them.

CHAPTER XXI.

"It doesn't seem right that you have to do it!" He glanced away thoughtfully and frowned. "I've lost something, I suppose, knowing only university life and having more money than I need. Maybe it's retarded my development. I haven't, as people say, lived. Girls were well, just good fun. Until you . . ." He looked back at her and smiled his most attractive smile. "This is a bit overwhelming for me. Why do you suddenly look unhappy, Brooke?"

She disregarded the tall frosted glass placed before her and her voice went a little out of control when she spoke. "Because love is unhappy, Tony, and because I tell myself often that I can live without it and that I want no part of it any more. I was in love, engaged, and he married some one else." All the years of her life in one small sentence . . ." It hasn't been very long ago."

"Then you were in love with some one who wasn't good for you!"

She could have laughed derisively. Instead she laughed so quietly that there was no sound of laughter as she picked up the cool glass.

Tony said slowly, "I see. I understand. But I don't care. It doesn't make the least difference to me."

"Don't make a plan to your life and live for it. When it smashes you'll smash with it. Not just emotionally but everything will be chaotic. I used to think that people were either all good or all bad, all black or all white. I don't know. I was never at sea before. Perhaps in time I won't even be startled at . . . new ports. It seems absurd in a way that one person can mean so much. But one person can. It's as if his personality had been fused with mine and I can't lose it. I hadn't meant to say so much."

His eyes were tender. "I'm glad you did. But I don't understand him! No, don't tell me. I'd rather not hear it." Then, "Don't you want to drink?"

"Want it and need it."

"We haven't much time."

Nothing is ever finished, she thought. If only human associations had a beginning, a middle and an end. If she could have her way, the association with Tony would end when they reached California. Yet, even if they said a final good-bye, a part of him would remain to hurt and haunt occasionally. But he, she was certain, had no intention of saying a final good-bye. The colossal optimism, the helpless egoism of people in love!

* * *

The ship had been in the Los Angeles harbor some hours before Brooke met Tony on deck, having told him the previous evening that she was certain Mrs. Kingsbury would be anxious to be off on the next part of her trip as soon as they had docked. She had risen early and packed and put on the blue tailored suit. Walking to him, hatless, her hair blowing, she thought that the prompt suggestion of breakfast would relieve them of a prolonged and painful farewell.

"I don't want to get off this ship," he said sadly. "Aren't you going to tell me where you'll be, Brooke?"

She told him the hotel where she would be stopping until Saturday and said, "I haven't had breakfast, have you? Has Bill gone?"

"I haven't seen him. But I saw Harriet before she left with five pieces of baggage and poor Mr. Ricardo looking very downcast in the offing." His voice was unfamiliarly sharp: 'All right. Let's have breakfast. Our last . . . the last of everything!"

He looked so completely miserable at breakfast that she said, "Tony, call me at the hotel, and if I can get away . . ."

"But you're leaving on Saturday!"

She said gently, 'And for how long I don't know. "If only he would not look as if she meant to hurt him!

'And even if I can break away and follow to Hawaii, you'll be tied up. What's the use? I'm sorry. I'm behaving badly. You, and the setup I can't fight, and a few other things. I never wanted to go home less. I never felt less like seeing mother's crowd. I've never played around with them much but there are always people there, open house. . . . I may be different this time but I doubt it."

She smiled. "I'll have another cup of coffee while you smoke your cigarette and then I must go."

"At least this is better than if I had to sit at this table three times a day and not see you across from me."

"Much better. I couldn't bear that either."

The cigarete finished, Tony said. "I can't kiss you here, Brooke . . ."

"Let's not say good-bye. I've said too many. Let's not say any of the usual things."

They arose together., She said. "We'll meet again," and glanced up and smiled at him before she walked away.

* * *

Mrs. Kingsbury and Ellen were, as she feared, waiting, the former impatient now to be on land. She did not see Tony again but as she followed Ellen down the gangplank, she had a feeling that he saw her from the deck. Tears clouded her vision. You also weep for one you cannot love . . .

That night Tony telephoned just as she was leaving her room to join Mrs. Kingsbury for dinner.

"Will you ask her if she'll let you off tomorrow afternoon?" he appealed. "Say you've got an uncle you haven't seen for years or a cousin in the movies. Say anything. We'll have a lot of people here but we don't have to stay."

"I'll ask her."

"I'll be there," he said quite gaily.

She told Mrs. Kingsbury the truth. "One of the passengers lives in Beverly Hills and has asked me to meet his mother tomorrow afternoon."

The old lady glanced at her sharply. Then she said, "I'll be resting tomorrow afternoon."

Brooke wore the tailored blue suit and frilly white silk blouse and little pancake of a blue hat and blue pumps as she met Tony halfway across the lobby the next afternoon.

"Hello," he said and his eyes were adoring again.

Outside, when he opened the door of a new cream colored roadster, he said, "my stepfather's. A beauty, isn't it?"

Brooke smiled. "It's the most expensive car I've ever been in, Tony."

"I've an expensive family. Shall we go out and meet them and get it over? Then we can go somewhere else . . ."

"Does your mother know I'm coming?"

He smiled. "No. I just ducked out and said I was bringing a guest. You don't have to explain anything to her and she doesn't often ask me questions. She's learned not to expect too much of people, even of me. She's the most completely shock-proof person I've ever known. She looks marvelous. There'll be a good many people there. You might even see your favorite movie star. If only you had longer to stay. There's so much to see here . . ."

* * *

An informative guide, Tony pointed out places of interest. Soon luxurious homes loomed into view and Tony turned the car into a road that led to a palatial white house shimmering in the afternoon sun.

"This is it," he said, parking the car in a driveway crowded with expensive cars. "It's new to me, too. Mother had her house rented. She came back rather suddenly and took this . . ."

"It's beautiful . . ."

The huge house was overflowing with people as they entered. Tony nodded, saying an indifferent greeting as he looked over heads for his mother. Brooke caught a brief glimpse of a dramatic actress who in real life was merely a big-eyed little blonde girl in a simple sport dress. A second later she glimpsed a cinema siren who in real life had a bridge of prominent freckles across her famous nose. But the many other faces were strange and totally oblivious to her as they consumed cocktails and lighted cigarettes and chatted.

"Where's mother?" Tony demanded of a tanned youth with tired eyes.

"Haven't seen her, old boy. When did you get back?"

"Yesterday," Tony said and introduced Rick Townsend with some reluctance. Tony looked at Brooke. "I'll find mother and then we'll leave."

Rick asked Brooke how long she was going to be in California, whether she wanted to meet the freckled siren, why she didn't have a screen test. . . .

She heard Tony's voice behind her, Saying, "Brooke, I want . . ."

Turning, she saw Irene in a blinding flash, conscious for a second only that it was Irene, that she wore something long and green, that she had many bracelets on her arm. . . .

Brooke's heart seemed to stop beating, then jumped into her throat, paralyzing her. Slowly, very slowly as she stared at the small, sharp-featured face with a brilliant painted-on smile, and at the sleek dark head she came to realize through a tumult of feelings that Irene was Tony's mother. . . .

Nor was Irene so shock-proof as her son believed. Though her brilliant smile did not fade, the light of the welcoming hostess, the liveliness in her wise, merry eyes died quickly.

"Why, why, hello, dear," Irene said.

"You know each other?" Tony cried, delightedly. "I don't get it!"

Irene said, "Yes, isn't it? But obviously you didn't tell her my name."

Irene was thinking fast, Brooke thought. Not until then did it occur to Brooke that Rod was here in this room. . . . And she felt like laughing and crying all at once because this was so funny—and so tragic—and so—mad. Rod here! She felt weak and aching. It was fantastic—but it was true. It was true!

Hoover Urges Industrial Head for Defense Program

EX-PRESIDENT WARNS PUBLIC AGAINST PANIC

Recalls Hitler Rose to Power During Roosevelt's Time, But Defense Lagged.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK — Former President Herbert Hoover replied last night to President Roosevelt's fireside chat of Sunday with a call for a non-political, single-handed munitions administration to build United States defenses.

In a nationwide speech over the National Broadcasting company's system, Mr. Hoover warned against panic in considering the nation's defense needs and against political distribution of money appropriated for defense.

He criticized the "partisan flavor" of the president's Sunday address, and noted that although Adolf Hitler rose to power in Germany and European rearmament was at is height during the Roosevelt administration, the nation still was unprepared.

He listed seven essentials of an efficient organization for "real preparedness." they were:

"1. That a munitions administration be created in Washington.

"2. That it should have a single-handed administrator with assistant heads for labor, agriculture and industry.

"3. That administrator should be an industrialist and not a politician.

"4. That he should have authority to appoint a no-partisan advisory board representing the army, navy, labor, transportation, manufacturing and agriculture.

"5. That the whole of the purchasing and manufacturing for the army and navy from private industry should be done by this administrator. The business of the army and navy is to state what they want. It is for the munitions administrator to deliver it.

"6. That a research organization should be created to constantly improve these products.

"7. That all appropriations for such work should be made to this organization."

"The increasing dangers in the world made it imperative that we be better prepared," Mr. Hoover said. "But equally the time has come when the American people must insist that adequate organization be set up within the government which will produce this defense. It must be an organization directed by men of outstanding experience in production management and labor unhampered by partisan politics.

Referring to the president's statement that enemy air fleets based in the western hemisphere could fly over Omaha, Des Moines or New York, Mr. Hoover pointed out the difficulties of transporting supplies to such bases "past the American fleet which is twice as strong as the combined fleets of Europe, omitting the British."

"That is a job that will take time even if it were possible," he said. "There is no occasion for panic. There is need for speed."

The "anxiety and alarm which in recent days have gripped our people" have not been entirely due to events in Europe but in part to "alarm and shock over the disclosure of the inadequacy of our preparedness plans and our defense," he said.

Musical Groups Present Program At John Simpson

A crowd of about 800 attended a musical program staged in the John Simpson junior high school auditorium last night by students of the school's vocal and instrumental music departments.

All groups but the band were represented. The band will present a program for students Friday afternoon during a special assembly.

The program included selections by the junior high school orchestra directed by S. K. Jorgensen, the 7th and 8th grade chorus directed by Lawrence Frank, the 7th and 8th grade choir directed by Miss Fannie Lew Eiler, and the 9th grade choir directed by A. LeMoine Derr, and a string quartet comprised of Norma Hess, George Porterfield, Richard Beilstein and Helen Hagelbarger.

Solo numbers were played by James Bierly, trumpet, Carol Ann Spencer, vocal, and Norma Hess, violin.

SCHOOLS CLOSE

SHELBY—Shelby schools closed Monday for their annual three-month summer vacation. Final tests were given the students Monday at the schools. Grade cards will be distributed to the students at the schools from 9 to 11 a. m. Friday.

Republican Leaders Urge Taft-Dewey Slate

Up and Down THE STREET

John Simpson Junior high school students will be given an opportunity to display their versatility as entertainers during an amateur show in the auditorium early next week. About 10 acts, selected from a group of 35 during tryouts last week, will take part in the show, to be staged by Dan Haber and William Edwards of the school faculty.

Joe Mayer, apparently, is in mid-season form. The youthful Mansfield shoemaker busted par the hard way at Possum Run last week. Playing in a foursome, Mayer chalked up a brilliant four-under-par 32 on the inside nine. What made it tough was the fact that he scored a "bogey" on the par three No. 2 hole. He had eight one-putt holes. Mayer, one of the outstanding Mansfield amateurs, came back Sunday to tally a 69 on the same course.

Dick James, Boy Scout troop leader trained to face emergencies with courage, was severely tested this morning when he started off to school on his bicycle and came across the body of his pet dog, "Bing," who had been killed by a motorist. The little black and white fox terrior had been a pet in the neighborhood of the James home on Highland avenue for nine years. The dog usually followed his "boss" out to the street as Dick started off to school each morning. He failed to show up this morning and as the boy turned out of the drive and started east on Highland, he came across the body of Bing at the curb. Dick is the son of Richard M. James, commander of McVey Post, American Legion.

The driver of a junk truck who left a trail of flat tires and angry motorists between Mansfield and Shelby this morning brought a flood of complaints to authorities in both cities. State highway patrolmen went out looking for the truck which officers said was strewing pieces of old iron and nails along the highway. Four or five motorists said their tires were punctured by the junk.

FARM CLEAN-UP

Rural Folk Go After Pests as Part of Week's Program.

This week has been designated as "clean-up week" for Richland county and Ohio farm families who have obtained loans from the Federal Farm Security administration, FSA officials announced today.

H. B. Swearingen, manager of the Richland county FSA office, said families who have obtained FSA funds will be urged to clean up their propetries to prevent contamination of water supplies and the breeding of mosquitoes and other pests.

"The 'clean-up' program is one means of promoting landlord-tenant relationships, because any landlord is more likely to retain a tenant if the house, yard, and barns are kept properly," Swearingen said.

TWO MORE FILE CAMPAIGN COSTS

Statements Virtually Complete Returns On Primary Expenses.

Two more candidates for county offices in the primary two weeks ago and filed their expense reports with the board of elections today, virtually completing the expense statement filings.

Ollid J. Davidson, who lost in the G. O. P. race for the nomination for sheriff, spent $20.40 on his campaign, while Dr. L. B. McCullough, unopposed Democratic candidate for coroner, said he spent nothing.

SIX JURORS IN TRIAL SEATED

Selection of Hammer Slaying Jury Expected to Take Most of Week.

(By United Press)

BELLEFONTAINE—Six jurors—three men and three women—were seated tentatively today to hear the first degree murder trial of Donald Slater, 18, charged with participation in the hammer slaying of Fred Jenkins, 51, Huntsville telegrapher.

The six talesman were chosen after lengthy questioning of a panel of 27 veniremen yesterday. The jury selection continued today.

Seating of a jury is expected to consume nearly all of this week. No witnesses have been subpoenaed to testify before next Monday.

Neither Mrs. Minnie Jenkins, 47, widow of the slain man, nor Merlin, 18, their son, were in court for the opening of Slater's trial. The mother and son who will be tried later are named in the joint murder indictment with Slater.

Judge Lawrence Zupp overruled a motion by Slater's counsel for change of venue on grounds that accounts of the Jenkins killing carried in local newspapers had prejudiced the minds of prospective jurors in this vicinity.

TWO PAROLES ARE GRANTED

Richland County Man and Woman Given Freedom By Commission.

Two persons, a man and woman, sentenced to state penal institutions from Richland county, were granted paroles today by the Ohio Pardon and Parole commission.

Rachel Thomas, sentenced in August, 1935, for breaking into a house, will be released next Oct. 1, after serving the maximum time under a one-to-five-year sentence in the Marysville reformatory.

James Collins, Mansfield, will be freed July 1, after serving one year and one month of a one-to-five-year term for non-support. He was sentenced to the Ohio penitentiary last June after admitting he violated his probation. He was transferred later to the London prison farm.

BITTINGER SUCCEEDS LIMBACH AS STATE DEMOCRATIC LEADER

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— A faithful lieutenant of former Gov. Martin L. Davey, J. Freer Bittinger, Ashland, grasped the controls of the Democratic state organization campaign machinery today to lead the campaign to put Davey in the governor's office for the third time.

Bittinger, one-time speaker of Ohio house of representatives, was unanimously elected chairman of the party's state executive committee to succeed Arthur L. Limbach, New Philadelphia, who had worked openly against Davey.

Limbach attended the meeting, but his sponsor in 1938, National Committeeman Charles Sawyer, the gubernatorial nominee two years ago, was not present. It is customary for the candidate for governor virtually to dictate the choice of executive committee chairman and Bittinger had been in charge of Davey headquarters here during the primary campaign.

Albert A. Horstman, Dayton, was chosen chairman of the state central committee without opposition to succeed the retiring chairman, Earl H. Hanefeld, Ottawa.

J. FREER BITTINGER

Besides Horstman, the following were chosen as officers of the central committee:

Vice Chairmen, Dr. C. J. Altmaier, Marion; Clarence A. Graham, Zanesville; vice chairwomen, Mrs. Nellie Dunlap, Hillsboro; Mrs. Helen T. Howard, Columbus; and Miss Ann Ryan, Kent. Miss Marie Dickson, Steubenville, was re-elected secretary and Walter Gordon, Lancaster, was named as treasurer.

Members of the state executive committee selected by their respective central committeemen, according to congressional districts, include:

Member to be selected: Harriet Stuart, Bucyrus.

Joe Lindsay, Millersburg; Mrs. Lottie Quigley, Canton.

William Frick, Coshocton; Mary Snow, Mt. Vernon.

TWO ENLIST IN U. S. NAVY

Mansfield, Willard Men Will Go To Newport For Training.

Robert L. Shauck, Mansfield, and Erving Klopfenstein, Willard, are among the young men from north central Ohio who will be enlisted in the U. S. navy June 5, the Sandusky recruiting station reported today.

They will be sent to the Naval Training station at Newport, R. I., for 12 weeks preliminary training. If not selected for one of the navy trade schools, they will be sent to sea for general detail aboard ship, the station reported.

SEEK HARMONY FOR PARTY IN WAR CAMPAIGN

Plan to Draft Vandenberg For Foreign Affairs Knowledge Grows.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — A wartime harmony presidential ticket of Taft and Dewey is being urged upon Republican members of congress today by important GOP leaders.

Advocates of the harmony slate suggest Sen. Robert A. Taft, of Ohio, be given first place over New York racket-buster Thomas E. Dewey because of his greater knowledge of international affairs and longer experience in the field of politics. They are urging congressional Republicans to agree to this ticket before the convention meets in Philadelphia June 24.

Against this harmony proposal, there is developing increased talk of drafting Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg for the "wartime" ticket, because of his prominent activity in molding the party's foreign policies in congress. The Vandenberg candidacy, his friends say, is on the upsurge and may overtake both Taft and Dewey, present leaders for the GOP nomination, by the time the convention assembles.

One congressional Republican explained the harmony talk thus:

"Dewey has been the most popular Republican candidate in polls and primaries. Taft has been the most popular candidate among Republican leaders.

"Since the blitzkrieg in Europe, there has been a growing reluctance among our party leaders to entrust the presidential nomination to Dewey, because of his youth and lack of experience in national affairs. Simultaneously, Taft has been growing in favor because of his experience in Washington. But Dewey still rivals Taft in popular favor.

"A lot of us feel that a deadlock between these two candidates might eliminate both of them and force the nomination of another Republican, not now as popular as either Taft or Dewey. Consequently, we feel that it will be in the party's interest and in the country's interest to nominate both Taft and Dewey — Taft in first place because of his wider experience, Dewey in second place because of his great popularity with the common people. That's the harmony slate."

YOUTH KILLED

Five Others Injured in Auto Crash Near Painesville.

PAINESVILLE—(U.P.)—The son of a Painesville city councilman was killed and five other persons injured early today when their sedan collided with a truck-trailer combination on U. S. 20, five miles west of Painesville.

John Joughin, jr., 19, believed to have been driving the sedan, died two hours after the crash in Lake County Memorial hospital. His brother, Donald, 15, was killed in an automobile accident 13 months ago.

Injured were Miss Josephine Inck, 23; Adelina Inck, 22, her sister; Miss Josephine Sapienza, 22; William Sebian, 19, and Miss Mary Seggio, 22, all of Painesville.

Deputy Sheriff Thomas Ralph said the car in which the young people were returning from a dance in Cleveland sideswiped the trucking outfit driven by Forrest Nye, Toledo. The sedan spun completely around, skidded 50 feet, overturned and hit a telegraph pole.

RITES TOMORROW

Former Resident of City Will be Buried in Mansfield Cemetery.

Funeral services for Frank Hickox, 75, former Mansfield resident who died Sunday at his home in Barberton, will be held Wednesday at 1 p. m. at the Wappner funeral home, Rev. B. F. Hagelbarger, pastor of the First Christian church officiating.

Interment will be in Mansfield cemetery.

18 Non-Union Men Continue At Newcomerstown Jobs.

NEWCOMERSTOWN — (U.P.) — J. R. Wood, plant manager of the Heller Brothers Co., file and tool manufacturers, said today that 18 non-union workmen were inside the strike-bound plant, making files by hand.

The strike was called Sunday by the International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths, Drop Forgers and Helpers (AFL) when the company rejected the union's demand for a closed shop.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Excerpts From Miss Midnight's Diary

There were more blondes around town last week than there are diamonds on Mabel Boll. Led by Madeleine Carroll, who in some masculine circles is regarded as the All Time blond, a regular gold rush hit the cafes, avenues and theater aisles, and there was a light-haired girl for every light on Broadway.

Blonde Miriam Hopkins chattering at a bar table in Monte Carlo. Blond Doris Dudley applauding in Leon and Eddie's. Blond Alice Faye dancing at La Martinique. Blond Betty Grable doing the rhumba at the Beachcomber. If there are any brunets in town, nobody is paying any attention to them, and I must say I can see why.

* * *

Just to show what good friends they still are in spite of IT ALL, Tony Martin and Alice Faye brought a party of friends into LeMartinique to heckle Danny Kaye, the comedian, on his last night there before moving to Ben Marden's Riviera.

When Danny came out to do his stuff, Alice and Tony and their group brought their chairs into line directly in front of him, and proceeded to give him the old dead pan. When this failed to break him up, they all bent down and took off their shoes. Danny followed by stripping off his packet, shirt, tie, shoes and socks, and during the uproar that followed Alice hid one of her ex-husband's shoes, so he just made her dance with him in her stocking feet.

* * *

At about 3 a. m. Tony was on the point of telephoning his hotel to have another pair of brogues sent over, so he could go home, when two waiters appeared at the table bearing a giant silver platter, covered with a silver lid.

When Cinderella Martin lifted the cover, who do you think he found?

Yes, indeed. His missing shoe.

Instead of eating it, Mr. Martin put it on and left.

* * *

Sunday night Doris Durley came around to Leon and Eddie's to watch her brother Bronson dance, and Paul Draper dropped in to congratulate him, so it was a big night for Bronson, who has just succeeded Rosita Royce and her doves. Monty Woolley sat around in his beard (Eddie Davis greeted him with "Hi-yo, Silver!) and Lois De Fee made an entrance in a gold-colored off-the-face hat. Henry Youngman took one look at the six-foot-two glamour girl and pointed.

"That's the first time I ever saw a skyscraper with a halo!"

* * *

None of the small town girls who read and dream about Brenda Frazier (ah, a brunet!) as they know her in the syndicated stories and the rotogravures would have recognized her if they'd been at the Persian Room Monday night. To the nation's trolly car and subway riders, Brenda is a gilded princess who lives in tulle from morning to night and dances in glass slippers.

Well, if you want to know what she had on as she waltzed into the Plaza to say hello to Eddy Duchin, she had a fur coat, blue slacks, a bandana around her head, dark glasses on her nose, and blue and white moccasins on her feet.

* * *

Tommy Dorsey opened at the Astor Roof, Tuesday night, and among the musical elite who came to hear the sentimental gent blow his trombone was that swing fan, Arturo Toscanini. I am told that Toscanini told Tommy the music was fine, but occasionally too loud—but don't quote me.

Tommy's brother Jimmy, who is playing over at the Pennsylvania's Cafe Rouge, sent four messenger boys to sing "happy opening" to his rival. The little boys stepped up to the microphone and did their pieces, then hung around the bandstand, listening, and as far as I know, they never got back to report to Jimmy.

Tony Martin, another of the guests, did a little impromtu singing, and as always happens when he gets up to warble, he stole the show.

Later on, over at the Hurricane, the blond rush was really on. Lyle Talbot brought in the golden-haired Ann Staunton; Shirley Ross took off her hat and revealed 14-karat locks when she got up to dance with her husband, Ken Dolan, and Betty (hurricane) Hutton, back with Fred Kaplan again, couldn't hide her blond curls although she was wearing the largest-brimmed hat in the room.

Ann Graham and Geraldine Spreckles, the blond beauties from "DuBarry," tried to catch blond Adele Jergen's eye, but she was too engrossed in chit-chat with Franchot Tone. Jean Harrington, browned from the Florida sun, was lighter-haired than she's ever been, and she had three escorts to prove that this in no way injures a girl's popularity.

In fact, the only brunet in the Hurricane was Mary Anita Loos, whose aunt wrote "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes."

Walter Huston and Edward Everett Horton and Ruth Weston were among those who turned out for an almost 100 per cent theatrical evening at the Algonquin Supper club to pay tribute to a rising new star—drawling, fire-eyed Arthur Hunnicutt, a player in the new Saroyan drama, who until a few weeks ago was a clothes-sorter in the Algonquin laundry.

Hunnicutt—a real Broadway success story—told how he had come to New York with $9 and the ambition to become one of the stage's 10 best actors.

"But," he drawled, looking raound at the assemblage of thespians and winking, "Ah don' wannah throw no one out of a job."

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—There's a new angle to women's hats after all.

Having seen women's hats from all angles with no small degree of wonder and horror, I was surprised at this discovery. I had thought that women's hats, as a subject for scientific exploration, had been covered thoroughly. But that was before I met Dorothy Yost. Miss Yost told me about the Hat That Doesn't Come Off.

Miss Yost is a screen writer. She is a bright moment, and practically no bigger than one. She was wearing The Hat when I met her for lunch. She was wearing also a very trim tailored suit of soft stripes, with a jeweled green fish at the lapel and a good luck ring of green stone. She also wore a wedding ring because she's Mrs. Dwight Cummings. He is a playwright, a psychology professor and the one who picked out the Yost attire, including The Hat.

* * *

The first odd thing about The Hat, I noticed, was that it looked like a hat. It had a crown and a brim, and it looked very smart, but it probably wasn't because no hat that looks like a hat is smart any more. After the first shock of seeing a hat again, I forgot about it because the face under this hat was bright, interesting, alert.

"I never take it off," she said, "because if I get kicked out of my office, then I don't have to go back for it."

This, of course, was rankest persiflage. Miss Yost never has been kicked out of any office, although she has been invited into many. She is invited most frequently when there is a producer who has a script that won't jell. Every producer's shelves are full of juicy scripts lacking in cinematic pectin. Every producer's shelves are filled with scripts lacking not only pectin, but juice and meat. Miss Yost is invited in to supply the shot of Vitamin B-1, or whatever it is that makes sour scripts turn sweet. Miss Yost has been doing this so long now that it has been years since she has had time to turn out a script of her own. She used to write her own when she gravitated to films about 1917, fresh from carrying on the journalistic torch that still flares in the Yost family of St. Louis.

Miss Yost smiled away her numerous feats of salvage—"it's fun taking a script that has had the benefit of many writers, each of whom has contributed something," she said. "All I do then is to pick out the good pieces, discard the poor, fit them together—and take a bit of the credit."

Fifteen Emerge As Qualifiers For Open Title

Jock Collins Shoots 154, Misses Qualifying By Four Strokes.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The Cleveland district today sent 15 crack golfers into the June 6-8 National Open tournament.

The 15 emerged as qualifiers from a field of 138 after 36 holes over the Manakiki and Mayfield courses. The open will be played here at Canterbury.

Two veterans of the links—Al Espinosa of Akron and Tony Penna of Dayton—lead the parade with 142's, one under par.

Missing from the list were two former champions, Billy Burke and Al Leach, both of Cleveland. Burke was National Open titlist in 1931 and Leach took the National Public Links crown in 1938.

Burke posted a 154, two more than the highest qualifying score, and Leach was far back with 170.

* * *

Walter Hagen qualified with a 149. Two amateurs, John Barko and Tom Whiteway, both of Cleveland, made the grade.

* * *

Henry Pabian of Steubenville qualified at Pittsburgh with a 150, six over the best score there.

Scores of the Cleveland district qualifiers included:

Lloyd Gullickson, Canton, 74-76—150.

Among those failing to qualify here were:

Jock Collins, Mansfield, 77-77—154; Ralph Doll, Canton, 154; Richard Besst, Canton, 79-79—158; George Howard, Canton, 80-78—158; Fred Castleberg, Canton, 81-78—159; Bill Alves, Warren, 85-77—162; Harold Mizer, Zanesville, 83-80—163; Andy Velican, Warren, 81-84—165; Walter Mayo, Massillon, 84-83—167; Charles De Yarmon, Canton, 86-81—167; Dale Boyd, Massillon, 84-89—173; Dale Holwick, Canton, 92-87—179.

Tauscher Pitches Millers To Victory Over Blues.

(By Associated Press)

Cagey Tom Sheehan found out last night that old Walter Tauscher still is a handy man to have around when the chips are down.

* * *

Sheehan, Minneapolis manager, planned to use Harry Smythe against the Kansas City Blues, but changed his mind and tossed the 36-year-old Tauscher against the American Association leaders. The veteran hurled a five-hitter and wound up with a 4 to 3 victory in 10 innings.

* * *

The triumph moved the Millers up within three games of the champions.

The floundering Louisville Colonels dropped into sixth place when they lost their third straight, a 2 to 1 decision to Columbus, which moved into fifth.

The only batters on the Shelby team who were able to hit Them were Fagan and Brightman, who secured one safety each out of three trips to the batter's box.

Braves Take Third

Score Two Runs In Ninth To Top Fremont by 8 to 7 Count.

DETERMINED to reach the top rung in the Ohio State league ladder the Mansfield Braves invaded Tiffin today to tackle the Mudhens under the floodlights tonight.

The Braves counted twice in the ninth inning to come from behind and mark up their third straight win by beating Fremont, 8 to 7, before approximately 400 fans in a "Merchants' and Manufacturers'" game at the Fairground last night.

With Howard Beals and Manager Dewey Stover on the bases, Koebel, Fremont third baseman, desperate to get Stover at second, tossed the ball into left field and both men scored.

Mansfield came to bat in the ninth trailing by a 7 to 6 score. Beals singled to center to open the inning and then Stover was hit by a pitched ball to place the runs in scoring position.

Foreign Cars May Not Race

Two Frenchmen Qualify In Slow Time.

INDIANAPOLIS—(INS)— With a full field of 33 cars assured for the 28th Indianapolis 500-mile race on Thursday, it appeared today that two members of the foreign contingent of drivers may be dislodged from the starting lineup.

* * *

The two threatened with ouster from the race were Rene Dreyfus, 32-year-old racing champion of France, and his countryman, Rene Le Begue, 25, who only a few weeks ago were granted special leave from the French army and traveled 4,000 miles to Indianapolis.

The pair were among 14 drivers who qualified yesterday, bringing the field up to the limit of 33 cars. But only the 33 fastest cars are permitted to start in the "500,"

Redlegs Grab Twin Triumph From Pirates

Cincinnati Victory Total Now Twenty-Two for Season.

PITTSBURGH —(AP)— Midway in their current wars with the Pirates, the Cincinnati Reds held a lead that wasn't there in their drive for National league supremacy.

* * *

The Rhinelanders grabbed a twin triumph, 2-1 and 7-3, from Pittsburgh yesterday for a total of 22 victories.

* * *

The Reds took early leads in both games. Three singles, by Lee Gamble, subbing for Ival Goodman, Frank McCormick and Ernie Lombardi, scored two runs in the first inning of the opener. It was all the Reds needed.

The only Pittsburgh run was counted on Lee Handley's double in the fifth.

Joe Beggs then took over for Whitey Moore for the Reds and allowed the Pirates only two more

Brooklyn Scores Fourth Straight To Maintain Lead

Cincinnati Hands Pirates 2 to 1 Defeat, But Dodgers Hold a Percentage Advantage.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(AP Sports Writer)

NATIONAL LEAGUE FANS, who have have endured hair-raising races in recent years that they can feel blase about the child's play now going on in the American league, never have had anything closer than the Cincinnati Reds and Brooklyn Dodgers are today.

They are tighter than a tie, if such a situation is possible.

The Dodgers are on top in percentage .714 to .710, but they are half a game behind in won-lost calculations. Cincinnati has won two games more (22) than the Dodgers, who have lost one less (eight) than the Reds.

The Reds did all that was in their power to capture the lead in stopping the Pittsburgh Pirates 2-1 and 7-3 yesterday. But their best just wasn't good enough to erase that percentage margin as long as the Dodgers continued to win—and they chalked up their fourth straight victory with a 6-0 shutout of the Philadelphia Phillies. Whitlow Wyatt kept four hits nicely spaced while his mates ganged up on Clyde Smoll and Frank Hoerst for an even dozen.

* * *

Pitching keynoted most of the day's games. Bill Posedel held the New York Giants to four safeties while the Boston Bees pounded out a 7-1 triumph with 13 hits off three pitchers.

* * *

The Chicago Cubs kept the National league design four-cornered by belting the St. Louis Cardinals 7-1 and closing the gap between them and second place to a game and a half. Claude Passeau limited the St. Louis sluggers to seven hits.

The Cleveland Indians slipped half a notch in their efforts to overtake the Boston Red Sox in the American league by losing a night game to the Detroit Tigers 6-1. The Red Sox were rained out at Philadelphia.

The New York Yankees pulled a pitching chestnut out of the fire in old time fashion. They got only four hits, the same as the Washington Senators, but triumphed 5-0. Spud Chandler allowed nothing but singles, well separated, while the Yankee blows included Charley Keller's fifth home run with two on and Joe DiMaggio's third.

This enabled the Chicago White Sox to climb back into the first division by outslugging the St. Louis Browns 15 hits to nine for a 7-5 victory. Ted Lyons went the route for the Sox.

Wreckers, Safety Cabs Tangle at Liberty Park

Bob Lapine, crack Cleveland Class A softball hurler, is scheduled to take the hill at 6:15 p. m. today when the Mansfield Wrecking company club meets the Safety Cabs in a Y. M. C. A. Independent league contest at Liberty park. The Wreckers will be seeking their fifth win in six starts. The Wemco team handed the Wrecking team its initial defeat last week.

OBERLIN BASEBALL CLUB TO HAVE CO-CAPTAINS

OBERLIN — (AP) — John McConahy of New Castle, Pa., and Kendal Briggs of Lakewood will pilot Oberlin college's baseball team as co-captains next year. John Carlisle of Bucyrus was elected golf captain, and Robert E. Wear of Oberlin and Alfred L. Dibella of Oak Park, Ill., were named co-captains of track.

Tribe Reforms Lines For Second Tiger Tilt

* * *

* * *

The first-place Red Sox were idle yesterday, but watched their lead mount to a full game last night as Newsom struck out nine Indians in limiting them to six hits for a 6 to 1 victory. It was Cleveland's first 1940 home game under the lights and attracted 25,718 fans.

The Redskins picked up their only run in the second inning on a pass to Hal Trosky and singles by Ken Keltner and Rollie Hemsley. Newsom grew stronger as the game went on, setting down the last 11 batters in order.

Meanwhile Detroit shelled three Cleveland pitchers for 10 hits, including a home run by Hank Greenberg, two doubles by Billy Sullivan and another two-baser by Bruce Campbell.

* * *

* * *

Allen hasn't pitched since straining an arm muscle in a game against Washington May 18. He has two victories this season, one of them a 1 to 0 decision over Detroit in the opener here.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Tony Galento came to town riding on a pony—of brandy.

* * *

He came in from his New Jersey gin mill to post a $2,500 guarantee hat he would show up on the night of July 2 for his "fighhof the fools" with Max Baer.

* * *

"This is nuts, just nuts," he said when he handed over the money. "Making me put up good dough to show I won't run out on Baer. I can beat both him and that lug of a brother of his at the same time."

As if to prove his scorn for Baer, and how lightly he holds him as a fighter, Galento announced that the first phase of his training, which starts today, would consist of nothing more rigorous that supervising the construction of his new saloon. He'll go a few light rounds with some blueprints, hoist a light fixqre here, wrestle a few mirrors there, and discuss strategy and tactics with the carpenters.

"My new place'll be a classy joint," Tony explained with a touch of pride. "And it'll be in my own building. Just bought it, and its got two stories. Yessir, it'll have class. Ain't nobody going to get in without a coat and a tie on."

When Galento settles down to real training, which will probably be two or three days before the fight, he'll work in the combination pool hall and gymnasium he has used for years. To the average man this site would be a trifle on the unhealthy side, what with its no-way ventilation and sunbeam-proof walls. But to Galento there is something bracing in stale cigar smoke and imprisoned liniment and pesin fumes.

The few times he attempted to get in shape in the cool, sweet air of the mountains resulted in severe setbacks and he dreads the out-of-doors and the birds and bees that go with it.

* * *

Galento has recovered a great deal, if not altogether, from the shock of Joe Jacobs' death. For a while he grieved so acutely that wise men along Cauliflower alley felt that he was finished as a fighter.

* * *

"I'll fight Baer just as I would have if Joe hadn't died," he said. "Maybe I'll fight a little harder."

Final preparations were being made today by Frank R. Burton, superintendent of parks for the opening Thursday of the swimming pool at Liberty park.

Opening of the city's only municipally-owned pool will launch the swimming season. Built by WPA and opened late in 1937 it will be in its third year of operation.

Burton said water had already been turned into the giant basin and it is expected that it will be filled some time today.

Russell Von Weider, re-named manager by the board of park commissioners will be in charge of the bathhouse and swimming. He will be assisted by George Biddle, jr., who will act in the capacity as life guard.

Miss Anne Moritz, 50 Boughton avenue, has been named cashier and George Murray, 379 Newman stree,t will be in charge of the checkroom.

Burton said the pool will be open daily from 9 a. m. until noon and from 1 p. m. to 9:30 p. m.

The board has sanctioned the issuance of season tickets which will provide adults with 25 swims for $3.50 and children 25 swims for $2.50.

The morning admissions for adults will be 15 cents and children five cents. Afternoon and evening prices will be 25 cents for adults and 15 cents for children.

At the completion of the school term, Burton said, the pool will be opened Tuesday and Fridays for free swimming for children under 15 years of age.

Life-saving and swimming classes will also be conducted by Von Weider during the summer.

NEW CLINIC

Ailments of Sewing Machines Studied and Repaired.

DURHAM, N. H.—(INS)—A clinic for sewing machines is the latest popular fad.

Sixteen sewing machine clinics will be held in New Hampshire during June and July.

The object of the clinics, says Miss Hazel E. Hill, extension clothing specialist, is to make home sewing less of a burden by teaching women how to keep their sewing machines in good running order.

Those attending will learn how to clean and oil the machine and to make simple adjustment of the tension, length of stitches, etc.

In 1939 at ten clinics in eight counties, 112 machines were reconditioned. These clinics prove so popular, that this year 16 will be held in ten counties.

32 HOURS WORK

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.—(INS)—To satisfy federal civil service requirements, George E. Rieder, attached to the war department office in Baltimore came to Colorado Springs at his own expense to do 32 hours of work in the post office. Rieder needed the time to complete his civil service probationary period.

His previous governmental duties had been as a temporary employe in the Colorado Springs postoffice 37 years ago. After doing the 32 hour stint, Rieder returned to Baltimore, a fullfledged civil service employe.

Hen Mothers Four Kittens

Something new in animal friendships come to light at the Ely Cochran home in Thomson, Ill., where four kittens are being mothered by two bantam hens. The hens adopted the litter some days ago and since that time the mother cat sulks nearby, puzzled about the situation and afraid to encounter wrath of the two small hens.

Earns His Living As Mailman When Fortune Dwindles

LONDON — (INS) — Sir John Stuart Knill, who once possessed a 2000-acre estate and an income of $20,000 a year, is now earning his living as a mailman.

Fifty-four years of age, tall and bearded, Sir John is the son and grandson of former Lord Mayors of London. Since he lost his money some years ago he has been employed as a road sweeper and ran a junk stall at the famous Caledonian market in London.

For delivering letters he now earns between $10 and $15 a week.

"I'm proud of my job," he once said, "Darned if I'm not, when I think of the life of luxury I used to lead."

* * *

History and Comedy.

Nearly 500 years after they fought, the historic English battles of Tewkesbury and Bosworth were recreated in part for the film "Tower of London," which is showing at the Ritz theater. Basil Rathbone is starred as the infamous Richard III. The co-feature is "Charlie McCarthy, Detective." Edgar Kennedy, popular comedian, is cast as a police inspector who is constantly heckled by McCarthy during the investigation of a mysterious murder which Charlie subsequently solves.

* * *

Jimmy Dunn in Familiar Role.

Jean Parker and James Dunn turn to comedy in the picture "Son of the Navy," which is showing at the Park theater. This is a story of a 12-year-old boy who runs away from an orphanage, deciding to find himself a mother and father. The plot thickens when he chooses Jean and Jimmy, who are continually on the "outs." The co-feature is "$1,000 a Touchdown" with Joe E. Brown and Martha Raye.

FIELD RATIONS TRIED BY ARMY

Four Types of Diet Tested by 'Streamlined' Force In California.

CAMP ORD, Calif.—(U.P.)—The army's third "streamlined" division is testing new type field rations as well as the latest in ordnance.

The new rations—divided into four classifications depending on troop disposition in relation to supplies—are described in an official bulletin as follows:

Type "A"—A ration that corresponds as closely as possible to the ration issued when troops are in permanent camps or barracks. When possible it includes fresh meat, fresh vegetables, and fresh bread.

Type "B"—In this ration there are no perishable products—most foods being canned.

Type "C"—Each meal is contained in two cans, one having meat, vegetables; the other, crackers, sugar, coffee.

If the Napoleonic adage "an army travels on its stomach is true, apparently a soldier's can opener is as vital a piece of equipment as is his rifle.

OUTDATED LAWS OF OHIO CITIES RE-DISCOVERED

WPA Survey Finds Many Odd Regulations Still on Statute Books.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Now the Works Progress Administration is tipping Ohioans off to a batch of outdated and forgotten city laws which even city officials in many instances didn't know exist.

Some odd legislation has been brought to light by a corps of researchers working at Ohio State university, assigned specifically to a study statute books of 40 municipalities.

Here are some of their discoveries:

In Toledo you can't park a vehicle on the streets more than 15 minutes unless there's a horse attached. Nor can Toledoans wash or clean fish, meat or clothing in city streets.

Operators of clothing stores in the Lucas county seat are prohibited from using force to drag in customers off the streets. Children six years old cannot be carried on a bicycle or motorcycle, except in sidecars. Feminine hatpins mayn't be exposed more than a half inch beyond the crown either.

Taboo in Portsmouth is kite-flying, and any game which might frighten horses, including football or "shinny."

Don't throw peanuts, smoke tobacco or stand up to the annoyance of others in a public place in Steubenville, or it may cost you $5.

There's a $10 fine at Zanesville for blowing horns in traffic jams. Illegal also is the driving of geese into public parks.

It may sound silly nowadays, but in Hubbard, Mahoning county, in case of fire the chief must hire the first horse offered for conveying apparatus—and then shell out $2 for its use. Speed limits are rigidly fixed in Hubbard: horses and bicycles, six miles an hour, and automobiles, ten miles an hour. Persons conducting themselves suspiciously in Hubbard may be arrested by the marshal but a "suspicious person" is nowhere defined.

If when driving in East Liverpool, your car frightens a horse, the law reads that your car must be stopped, else a fine might result.

Swimming or bathing in Canton is prohibited in creeks, water-courses or pond—between sunrise and sunset.

"A number of Ohio's municipalities are 100 years or older. In early days almost every session of the city council resulted in the adoption of new ordinances, many of which are so obsolete as to be ridiculous today," George W. Tomlinson, project director, commented.

Ohio State university and each participating city is sponsoring the research project, aimed at citing descrepancies between city ordinances and state and federal laws. Some city officials have indicated they would take steps to repeal the mirth-provoking obsolete ordinances.

DISCUSSION

High School Seniors Conduct Rotary Club Program.

GALION—Five seniors of Galion high school made a discussion so interesting and lively about "The Effect on the United States if Germany Wins the War," at a meeting of the Galion Rotary club, Monday night, that when they were finished several Rotarians joined in the discussion.

Seniors taking part in the panel were Dale Sanderlin, Bernard Mansfield, Norman Knable, James Dunn and Victor Smith.

A report was given on the activities of the Junior Rifle club by M. D. Bonsteel.

Two visitors present were Clifford Hiller of the Mansfield Rotary club, and Hobart S. Sockman of Portland, Oregon.

EXPLOSION

GALION — Leaving their home at 7 o'clock Sunday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Motsch and family of 397 North Market street, returned at 9 o'clock to find that they had escaped an explosion of a water storage tank in their home. The electric refrigerator and stove were blown out of place, dishes and table broken, in addition to damage to the tank and water pipes. Damage was confined mostly to the kitchen.

SCOUTS ATTEND LEGION SESSION

Give Demonstration Monday At Meeting of Galion War Veterans.

GALION—Boy Scouts of the troop sponsored by Scarbrough post, the American Legion, gave a demonstration at the regular meeting of the Legion post Monday night. This followed a business session of the post with Commander Gilbert Plack in charge.

John Wisler and Richard Hills, members of the School Boy Patrol who made the trip to the annual School Safety Patrol celebration in Washington, D. C., earlier this month, were present and told about the trip. The post had paid the expenses of one of the boys, while the Galion Automobile club sponsored the trip and sent the other boy.

Motion pictures of the American Legion convention parade which had been taken by Walter Hill of Mansfield, were shown, and also a film of the war in Poland.

The post will go to Chesterville Thursday afternoon, to take part in Memorial Day services, and next Sunday they will take part in the services at Caledonia.

1100 APPLAUD FOURTH ANNUAL DANCE REVUE BY SPEAS PUPILS

The fourth annual revue of the Marguerite Speas Dance studio at Senior High school last night drew the largest crowd ever to attend any of the Speas revues. Almost 1,100 seats were sold.

The affair was a benefit for the Senior high school fund and students aided in selling tickets. The attractive stage setting was designed and executed by Senior high art classes. In keeping with the theme "Down By the Border," the back curtain carried a huge and colorful Mexican sombrero and guitar. At the base of the back drop were desert cacti and two life-size donkeys, carrying Mexican riders.

Glenn Schroff, one of the senior students of the Speas studio, served as master of ceremonies and kept the show moving at a lively pace.

The audience, which seemed never to run out of enthusiasm, gave a big hand to the ballet number in which 24 girls in costumes of pastel shades danced familiar ballets. June Imhoff had the solo role.

Anita King, 8-year-old acrobatic dancer, was a hit in her solo dance in which she did difficult feats with her hands chained together, and Arline Locke, 6, also did an acrobatic number while holding a filled cocktail glass in her hand.

Two solo dancers who claimed their share of attention were Gene Calver, who did a rhythm tap in a costume of white tails and top hat, and Carolyn Wilkinson in a Highland Fling. A "Flash Tap" in which the girls wore purple cellophane coats and danced by flashlight, received an enthusiastic hand. The finale, a Bal Masque, was danced by four of the senior girls in black velvet "scanties," white wings and long black gloves.

Seventy-five dance students took part in the revue. More than a hundred attractive costumes were designed and made by Mrs. Herman Speas and a staff of assistants.

UNIQUE MISSION

World Traveler Visits Japan To Study Children.

TOKYO—(INS)—Amos Burg, who holds the honor of having descended all major North American rivers, is in Japan on another unique mission, this time for Columbia university.

The world traveler is here to make a motion picture of Japanese children, showing their daily routine from the moment they arise in the morning until they are in bed. The film is to be used throughout the United States in schools as a geographical and educational film.

A member of the Explorer's Club in New York, Mr. Burg considers this assignment, though interesting, rather unexciting. In 1938, together with Buzz Holmstrom, he conquered the Colorado river, considered one of the most difficult rivers in the world to travel. He has also sailed a dangerous 2,000-mile course through the Staits of Magellan at Cape Horn, and made a canoe trip through the canals of London to Liverpool.

COAT SAFE NOW

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. —(INS)—If someone makes off with your coat and hat in a restaurant, call the manager—and he'll pay or else. That's the good news disclosed by Samuel Hollander, counsel for the New Jersey Hotel association.

If a waiter takes your apparel and hangs it up, the management's responsible even if there's a warning sign posted, Hollander said.

Where Will They Sleep?

A distracted Belgian mother and her three children wander in a daze through the ruins of what once was their home. Part of the house in the rear, broken by heavy shell fire, has just collapsed. This picture was passed by the British censor.

DRIVERS FINED

Arrested by Highway Patrol, Plead Guilty to Charges.

Two drivers arrested by state highway patrolmen over the weekend for reckless driving were fined $10 and costs each when arraigned before Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch in municipal court yesterday. Both pleaded guilty to charges of unsafe driving.

They were Kenneth Mawhorr, 23, R. D. 2, Mansfield, and R. J. Zimmer, Cleveland. Both were arrested on U. S. route 42 north of Mansfield.

LODGE ARRANGES SUNRISE RITES

Venus Masons to Conduct Early Service Memorial Day, End It With Breakfast.

Venus Lodge No. 152, F. & A. M., will hold its third annual sunrise Memorial day program and meeting Thursday morning in the Masonic temple.

The meeting opens at 2:45 a. m., followed at 6 a. m. with a ham and egg breakfast for all members.

During the meeting the Master Mason degree will be conferred on one candidate. The Memorial day address will be given by Frank K. Hall of Shelby, past high priest of the Grand Chapter of Ohio.

During the exercises a 50-year veterans jewel will be presented to C. S. Hill. Presentation will be made by Carl Wolfarth, district deputy grand master of the 20th Masonic district.

Music during the meeting will be furnished by a quartet made up of W. N. Fenn, W. O. Crall, C. B. Swaidner and L. E. Chamberlain and O. L. Seybold, organist.

Arrangements for the meeting are in charge of A. Roger Oster, worshipful master, Frank Garver, A. H. Benson, Walter Burrier, L. E. Gray and Albert Hachten. Breakfast will be served by the Fellowcraft team.

GETS 30 DAYS

Man Pleads Guilty to Theft of 14 Pairs of Hose.

Pleading guilty in municipal court yesterday to a charge of petit larceny, a man who gave the name of Mickey Nolan was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail.

Nolan was arrested Saturday by police who accused him of the theft of 14 pair of hose at the Neisner store on North Main street. The affidavit was signed by A. J. Frank, store manager.

APPLE JUICE

BERKELEY, Cal.—(INS)—"Drink your apple a day." This may become the successful slogan of a new product, canned apple juice, Dr. W. V. Cruess, head of the fruit products laboratory of the University of California college of agriculture said today.

Apples are abundant, low in price and yield an excellent juice, he pointed out, stating the product soon may rival tomato and pineapple juices.

Threat of Revolution In Mexico Next July Revealed

REPORT NAZIS POURING GOLD INTO COUNTRY

Communist Agents Also Said To Be Active In Arms Smuggling.

By JOSEPH H. BAIRD
(INS Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON— The prospect of a a fiercely-fought revolution breaking out in Mexico next July at the very time when the European war is likely to be in its bloodiest phase, today is causing deep concern among American officials.

Confidential but authentic reports from below the Rio Grande say that arms are being smuggled into Mexico in considerable quantities. Numerous Nazi and Communist agents, well-armed with gold, are ready to bend the revolution to their own ends and are even now engaged in an active propaganda campaign against the United States, these same reports declare.

Outbreak of the revolution is not expected until after the national elections, scheduled for July 1. It now appears to authorities on Mexican affairs that the race between Avilo Camacho, candidate of the Mexican revolutionary party, now in power, and General Andeu Almazan, commander of the forces at Monterey, will be close. This makes it extremely likely, Washington authorities hold, that the losing party will charge the other with dishonesty at the ballot box and attempt to overthrow the winner by a coup d'etat.

If this happens, the largest state between the United States and the Panama Canal will be thrown into chaos and confusion—and hence will be less able than usual to combat "fifth column" activities—at the very time when America's own relations with Europe and Asia are likely to be in a dangerous and delicate condition.

Rumors have circulated in Washington for more than a month that in view of the prospects of a Mexican revolution, the army is strengtening its forces in Texas. The war department has consistently denied this. However, it is known that in August the third army will assemble for maneuvers in Louisiana.

This force, including many cavalry units, will total more than 65,000 officers and men. These troops could be shifted quickly to the Texas border if trouble should develop there as it did during the period of chaos in Mexico from 1913 to 1916.

According to capital authorities, President Lazaro Cardenas of Mexico has declared a "hands-off" attitude toward the coming election and has announced that he will support neither Camacho nor Almazan. However, Camacho is the candidate of Cardenas' party and is expected to enjoy the support of the administration machine. He is given a better than even chance of being declared the public's choice.

Until recently, Almazan was regarded by observers as being the choice of the rich land-owners and the capitalist class in Mexico and as having little support among the workers and peasants. Lately, however, persons with a first-hand knowledge of Mexican politics have noted a popular swing to the general and believe that he will poll sufficient votes to make the balloting, if honestly conducted, very close.

The construction of a bridge in Lake township at a cost of $709.70, of which $340.70 will be for labor, was approved by the commissioners.

INCREASE DEBT AND TAXES IN DEFENSE PLAN

$3,000,000,000 to Be Added To National Limitation On Obligations.

payment of the national defense program. Mr. Doughton and Mr. Harrison stated they will convene their committees immediately to formulate a plan.

"They will propose an increase in the national debt authorization by $3,000,000,000 to provide for issuance of national defense obligations to be sold with maturities not to exceed five years and they will also propose the levy of additional taxes, the details of which are to be worked out by the committees.

"These proposed taxes will yield between $600,000,000 and $700,000,000 annually over a five year period which will be sufficient to liquidate the national defense securities.

"The secretary communicated to the president the conclusions reached by the conferees and the president expressed his approval of the program."

While the conferees refused to discuss the proposed tax increases, it is known that the treasury has been conducting a continuing investigation of new sources of revenue. There are a number of tax measures that have received attention of treasury experts all of which probably will be considered by the congressional committees.

One of these embraces a general increase in corporation and individual income taxes. Some thought has been given to boosting surtaxes on individual incomes between $10,000 and $100,000. A broadening of the income tax base reducing both the exemption granted single and married individuals also has been studied.

The public debt currently stands at $42,786,000,000. Originally it had been the intention of the administration to withhold demands for boosting the $45,000,000,000 ceiling until the next session. The war developments in Europe bring about a fresh increase in army and navy appropriations, coupled with the fact that the treasury must meet some maturing securities in the near future prompted the decision to seek an immediate debt limit rise.

The $48,000,000,000 is in effect a compromise since the administration originally sought to lift the ceiling to $50,000,000,000.

PLAN SUMMER DANCE SERIES

Appleseed PTA Committee Seeks Approval of Parents For Benefit Events.

Plans for a series of six benefit dances to be held during the summer months were mapped by a committee from the Johnny Appleseed junior high school Parent-Teacher association during a meeting at the school yesterday afternoon.

The dances will provide recreation for junior high school students during the summer, and will be held in the Johnny Appleseed gymnasium. Proceeds will be used to purchase a motion picture projector for the school.

Permission to use the gymnasium for the dances was granted the P. T. A. by the board of education. Letters were being sent to parents of all Appleseed students today, asking their approval of the dances. If there are not enough parents approve the plan, the dances will not be held, members of the committee said.

Dances will begin at 7:30 p. m. and continue until 10:30, and will have 10 parents and two teachers as chaperones at each affair. First of the affairs is scheduled for June 12. Two dances each are planned for June, July and August.

The committee planning the dances is comprised of Mrs. E. S. Wendell, chairman, Mrs. George Berg, Mrs. G. C. Young and Robert Y. Davis of the school faculty.

Pledge of Allegiance To Flag.

"I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

Co-ordinating Industry for Defense

PLACING patriotism and the welfare of their country above all other considerations, confidence can be felt that any of America's great business and industrial leaders who are called upon by President Roosevelt to aid in a build-up of United States defenses will respond whole-heartedly and cheerfully.

The fact that William S. Knudson, highly capable president of General Motors, is among the first mentioned in the proposed co-ordinating of American industrial production to meet the heavy demands of a gigantic defense program, indicates a serious approach to problems which now confront the administration.

It is such men as Mr. Knudson, Henry Ford, Walter P. Chrysler, Alfred P. Sloan, and their executive associates in the automotive field, and others in various lines of big industry, who have proved their ability to successfully cope with problems of mass production, without sacrifice of quality and with the greatest possible elimination of waste.

And it is to men of this type that the federal administration, and the entire nation, must look for leadership and direction in an emergency such as is now being faced by the United States.

In his most recent fireside chat President Roosevelt said: "Private industry will have the responsibility of providing the best, speediest and most efficient mass production of which it is capable. The functions of the business men whose assistance we are calling upon will be to co-ordinate this program—to see to it that all of the plants continue to operate at maximum speed and efficiency.

"Patriotic Americans of proven merit and of unquestioned ability in their special fields are coming to Washington to help the government with their training, experience and capability."

If the potentialities of American industry are to be used to fullest extent, and if adequate defenses are to be provided in the shortest possible time, the intelligent co-ordination of this country's industrial production facilities will be the first essential step toward that end.

And this must be done by men who have already demonstrated that they KNOW HOW.

Display the Flag Thursday

WHEN everything is going along in a placid sort of way many of us are inclined to forget such things as displaying the flag on occasions when this should be done.

Memorial day observance on Thursday brings such an opportunity for individual expression of patriotic Americanism and present conditions are such as to encourage the display of a flag, large or small, at every home, place of business, industrial plant and public building in the city.

It has been said: "Upon seeing our nation's flag, we see more than the flag. We see the nation itself, the government, the ideals, the history, the great leaders, the future dreams. We see a symbol of a long struggle to achieve democracy."

One of the great needs in this country is for more general realization that the rights and privileges of American freedom were not easily secured and that they must be strongly guarded if they are to be retained.

This is a time for rededication to the principles symbolized by the Stars and Stripes. It is a time when the flag might well be displayed every day on all public buildings, so that it may serve as a constant reminder of the duties, obligations and privileges of American citizenship.

Memoral day, Flag day on June 14, and July Fourth are approaching occasions on which Old Glory should be so greatly in evidence in Mansfield, and all over the country, as to leave no doubt of the loyalty of all native-born and naturalized citizens of the United States.

Bicycles Unsafe for Two

DEATH of a six-year-old boy in a traffic accident, while riding on a bicycle with an older brother, directs attention to what has been a rather common practice in Mansfield—that of two children riding a bicycle on streets or highways.

While this may seem a convenient way to provide transportation for a friend or another member of the family, the danger involved should not be ignored, as the balancing and guiding of a bicycle is made much more difficult by the second person being on either the handlebar or frame rod, and, in the event of accident, the chance of serious injury or death is increased.

In some places there is a law against this practice, with inclination toward quite rigid enforcement, but it appears that the ordinance governing use of bicycles on Mansfield streets does not cover this point.

Youthful riders, as well as their parents, would do well, however, to keep in mind the added hazard of carrying a second person on a bicycle and to urge abandonment of this practice.

Research in China

THE CHINESE are an amazing people. Not long ago they asked foreign friends to send them books to be used by students and teachers away from their buildings and equipment, who had set up school again with nothing but their determination to keep going.

Now they ask American scientists who have scientific books and reprints to spare, to send them to China to help research workers trying to carry on there.

"Owing to our hurried departure from Nanking, more than 200,000 volumes fell into the hands of the Japanese, who set them, together with the valuable collections of other institutions, on fire," writes the librarian of the National Central Library.

The library has been moved to Chunking, provisional capital of the Chinese republic, and from there lends what books and publications it has to scientific workers in other parts of the country, sending the material by mail.

Remember the old question, "Why does a chicken cross the road?" The answer now is, according to the Chicago Tribune: "To test your brakes."

Seems odd that the idea of beauty contest judges wearing masks shouldn't have been thought of by those delegated to pick the winner in baby shows.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—If you are interested in foreign affairs—and if you aren't there must be something the matter with you—then you will want to know something more about Mr. Raymond Gram Swing, the ablest analyst of foreign affairs on the air today.

Mr. Swing is able because he is lucid and coherent, and because he has spent 28 years covering wars and the European news front, and also because he has a profound understanding of the European economic structure without which there can be no real understanding of the continent as it is today.

People who have heard him on the radio but who have never seen him may be a little surprised at his appearance. Before I had seen him I imagined him to be not too tall, and perhaps a little gray and a little stout—say about 45 years old.

Raymond Gram Swing is six foot with wide shoulders and a lanky frame. He has brown, unruly hair that is just faintly tinged with gray, and he wears heavy horn-rim glasses. All in all, he looks more like a midwest college professor than a student of current events. At 52 he has come into his own as an authority on world events, and today his voice is more eagerly awaited that that of any other commentator.

* * *

MR. SWING talks to the nation, or the greater part of it, five nights a week, from 10 to 10:15, E. S. T. These talks are appraisals of what has happened in the world during the previous 24 hours. He arrives at his office, which is at 1440 Broadway, each day around noon. From then until six o'clock he reads newspapers, the intercepted foreign broadcasts, and the dispatches and communiques. From these tangled, conflicting threads he pieces out the significant trends in the news. Then he sits down and writes his broadcast, a script of approximately 2,000 words. After this is written he edits it, reads it aloud, alters its wording for precise shades of meaning. If nothing happens to change these trends, he carries this script to the air.

If you check back on Mr. Swing's career you will find he is the son of a Congregational minister, that he studied piano at the Oberlin (Ohio) Conservatory of Music, that he worked as a reporter on numerous dailies, and that once he was managing editor of the Indianapolis Star.

* * *

DURING the World war he was in Berlin for the Chiago News, and he scooped the world on the story of Germany's "Big Bertha." As an active correspondent he witnessed the shelling of the Dardanelles. Once he was aboard a Turkish freighter when a British submarine suddenly bobbed to the surface and commanded the ship to halt. When one ship asks another "Who are you?" the information required is the name of the ship, but when the submarine captain demanded of the freighter "Who are you?" Swing stood up and replied, "I am Raymond Gram Swing of the Chicago News." This was an incident that went into the sub's log, later to be picked up and used by the late Rudyard Kipling, and today it remains a part of the Royal British Navy's legend.

When Mr. Swing first began to broadcast some two and a half years ago, many radio editors, under the influence of the times, listed his name under the popular dance band programs as "Raymond Gram, swing."

But it is safe to conclude that few editors fall into this error now.

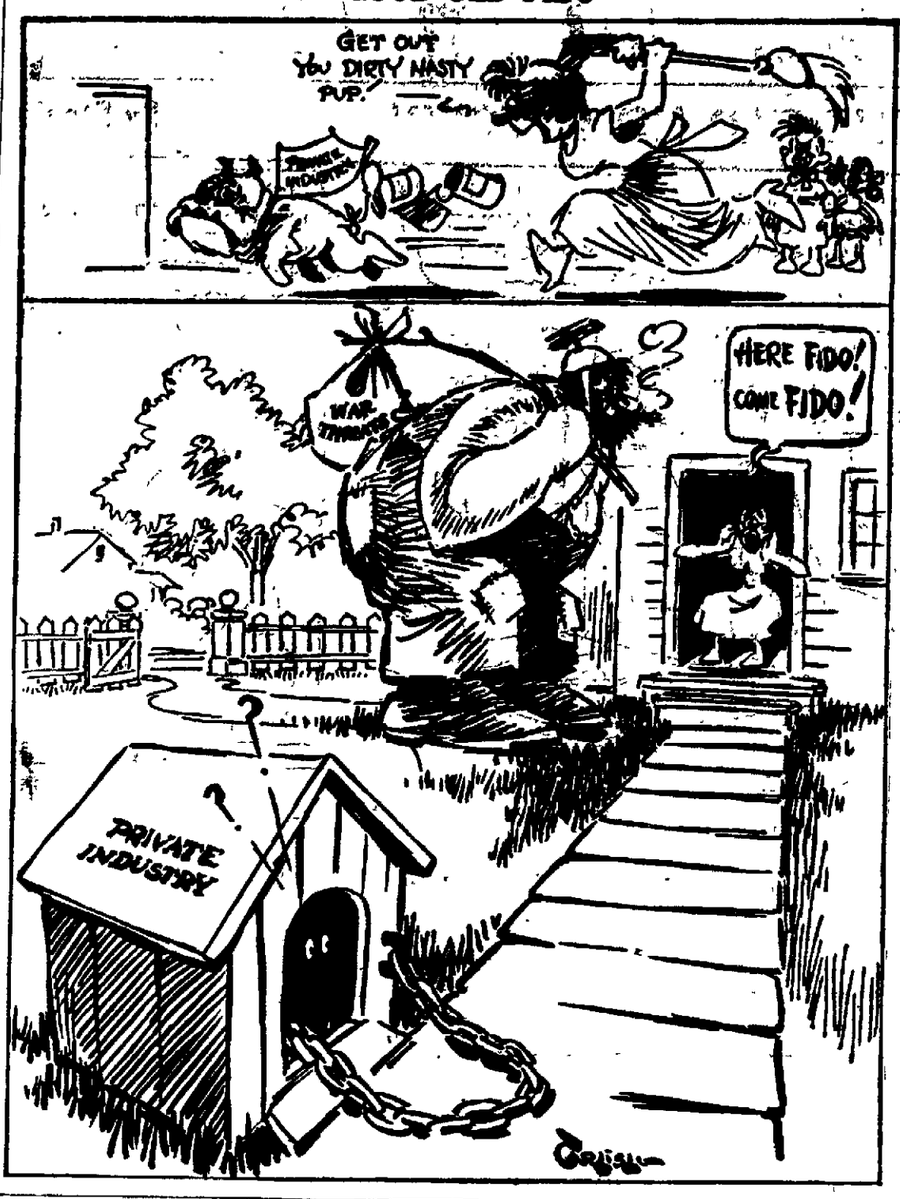
GOOD OLD FIDO



Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — For weeks there hasn't been a night that midnight oil hasn't been burning in the gray, ramshackle Department of State building.

The 44-hour week has become more than twice that for many officials and a lot of their underlings. Foreign relations must be kept intact. Scenes abroad change swiftly. Raise your finger from the world's pulse one moment and the hint of a new and vital flux may be lost.

But if you think Secretary Hull's boys in the home office of American diplomacy are overworked, pity the men in the field, sweating over the new problems that a war raises.

Besides their regular duties they are working for the Allies. In Berlin, Brussels, The Hague, Copenhagen and Oslo, the United States embassies or legations have been authorized to handle all the business of Great Britain, France, Canada and Australia, and in some instances that of Belgium, Luxembourg, New Zealand, South Africa and Egypt.

* * *

Courtesy Doesn't Pay.

THIS is all a matter of international courtesy. Nations who have gotten themselves into a mess don't pay a dime for the labor expended in their behalf, although they do make an honest effort to defray all cash outlays involved.

The first obligation generally is seeing that the representatives of the nation represented get safely out of the country.

For example, when Hitler crashed through Holland and Belgium, it was our legation at The Hague and embassy in Brussels which assisted the French and British representatives in getting safe passage home.

In September, 1939, when England finally tossed down the glove, Alexander Kirk, United States charge d'affaires, helped Sir Nevile Henderson, the British ambassador, get his "30 men, seven women and two dogs" onto the sealed train that carried them to the Dutch border.

Next, United States representatives take over the records of departing officials, place the United States seal on the buildings left behind, and settle down to try to straighten out the problems left in their hands.

* * *

We're the Mouthpiece.

NOT the least of these is the business of transmitting messages between countries that no longer speak to each other. When Belgium wanted to notify Germany that Brussels was an open city—that is, unfortified and not subject to bombing—the whole business was transmitted through the U. S. embassy. The Belgium state department passed the word along to the embassy; the embassy passed it along to the U. S. embassy in Berlin, and from there it went to the Nazi state department in the form of a formal note. The answer was passed back.

On the other hand, Germany warns Antwerp that, unless she surrenders immediately, the city will be considered a military objective, subject to the worst that the Nazis have to offer. This word goes through the American embassies and the answer is handed back to Berlin.

So, if one of our European diplomatic staff members rises up during his two hours of sleep and shouts "to hell with the Nazis," I think the Germans should understand—and bow at least as deeply as Sir Nevile Henderson.

Listen, World!

How Real Is Your Democracy?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

HOW REAL is your belief in Democracy? Is it a matter of pretty words or passionate principles? Something you take for granted—or something you know you must promote and defend? And are you foolish enough to believe it can't be licked?

Hendrik van Loon, the great historian, recently hurled these questions at the American people in one of the most tragic and timely broadcasts ever made. Twenty-four hours earlier the Nazis had invaded his birthland, Holland. Enroute to the lecture hall, he read of the bombing of his childhood home.

His voice choked with grief and horror, Van Loon rose to speak. But his carefully prepared notes were useless. They belonged to a world, to a faith and order, which had vanished overnight. Already the dykes along the Zuider Zee were down and the sea had spread its deadly salt tide over the once kindly earth.

Death, too, was raining from the skies. Blood ran in the streets of Rotterdam, babes died in the gutters of Amsterdam. And, in The Hague, an indomitable old woman stood at her post, watching the struggle, keeping the faith no matter what it might cost.

Too late, perhaps, to speak of Holland. But, looking at the waiting faces before him, Van Loon cried the question that lies so heavy on millions of hearts, "WHAT OF THE UNITED STATES?" If decency had not availed in Europe, how long would it prevail in America?

HOW LONG COULD THE DYKES OF DEMOCRACY WITHSTAND THE KILLING TIDES OF HATE AND GREED?

"ONLY AS LONG AS IT IS A LIVING ISSUE TO THOSE WHO BACK IT . . . NOT MERE WISHFUL THINKING," thundered Van Loon.

Those countries which have vanished, or are vanishing today, he continued, also believed in friendliness and fair play. They, too, desired the good way of life. But perhaps they did not take it seriously enough. They were hard-working, kindly, tolerant and contented. To most of them, that seemed enough. But it was not enough! No people can take their peace or prosperity for granted. They must protect them constantly against the powers of evil.

Then his voice rose in terrible warning to America.

"This is the lesson which must come to you from that horror in Holland. For you, too, are apt to take your good things for granted. You, too, are given to making incantations, indulging in wishful thinking, flattering yourselves with a false sense of security, trusting in a democracy of which you boast but which you do so little to protect.

"But I tell you it is not enough. It is not enough to have a noble plan and then sit back and say that things will take care of themselves. Nothing will take care of itself! You must take care of the things you wish to keep . . . you must think about them, work for them, be prepared to die for them."

HOW REAL IS YOUR BELIEF IN DEMOCRACY? Is it based on "wishful thinking"? Self-kidding? Or is it backed by honest conviction, continuous service, and a two-fisted wallop? Don't all speak at once. Don't speak at all until you've taken a long look-see at Exhibit A. Maybe you'll be surprised!

Seven Million Bibles.

In the single year of 1939, we are told, 7,370,908 Bibles were distributed in 40 countries and 200 languages.

They are in the tunic-pockets of muddy, bleeding men in Flanders. They are smashed in the ruins of the houses of Norway and Belgium. They fly with the German raiders off the English coast, and earnest-eyed Chinese boys carry them into the dugouts of Chungking. Behind the black-out windows of Berlin, and Paris, and London, and the little villages of Kent and Touraine and the Black Forest, eyes strain at the pages under the carefully-guarded lamp.

What would happen, do you suppose, if every possessor of such a book in the world would turn at the same instant some evening and read Isaiah's prophesy:

And he shall judge among the nations, and shall rebuke many people; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more.—Newark Advocate.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

(Editor's Note—This is the second of a series of Merry-Go-Round articles on inefficiency in our national defense system.)

WASHINGTON—One of the things which Alf Landon reported to President Roosevelt was that the Middle West was no longer isolationist, and that probably three out of every five people in that area felt that the United States should or would get into the war for its own self-preservation.

However, after he had been in Washington for twenty-four hours Landon added that neither he nor the people of the Midwest realized how woefully unprepared the U. S. army was.

Basis for that unpreparedness goes back primarily to the fact that the United States, a peaceful nation, has not wanted a large standing army and has not voted the funds for it.

But in addition to that, it remains an unpleasant but inescapable fact that the army has made pitifully poor use of what funds were voted, and that up until recent months it has been bogged down with inertia, its eyes closed to modern war methods just as complacently as those of the aristocratic officers of England.

Whenever a U. S. army officer has opened his eyes, he has been promptly knocked over the head as a reward for his energy.

General Bishop's Trucks.

AN EXAMPLE is the case of Major General Harry Bishop, former chief of field artillery. During the Hoover administration he tried to work out a system of motorization not unlike the blitzkrieg methods which have put Germany at the Channel ports in eleven days.

General Bishop eliminated the slow-moving horse by mounting French "75" field guns on rubber-tired wheels and then hitched them behind motor trucks. The trucks carried the ammuntion, ordinarily hauled in the limber, and the whole process eliminated six horses, two men and about $50 of expense per gun per day.

With the same speed that Germany moved toward the Channel ports, General Bishop, sent his motorized gun from the Holabird Ordnance Depot in Baltimore to Fort Bragg, N. C., in 13 hours at a cost of $100 per gun. Horses would have taken 20 days to make the same trip and would have cost $2,000 per gun.

General Bishop was abreast or even ahead of the Nazi technique which the U. S. army now is trying so frantically to emulate. But what was his reward? After the trucks were bought and paid for, the controller general, John H. McCarl, ruled that they were illegally purchased and would have to be paid for personally by General Bishop and the officers of the field artillery.

McCarl claimed that Chevrolet had made a lower bid on the trucks than Ford, whose trucks were used. General Bishop replied that Chevrolet had not come up to the army's specifications, but McCarl remained adamant and the dispute dragged on for several years.

McCarl was the controller general whom Republicans hailed as the great check-rein upon New Deal spending, and with whom Roosevelt constantly quarreled because of unreasonable red tape. But whatever his politics, Mr. McCarl was no help to a modern army.

Naturally other army officers witnessed General Bishop's difficulties and were not encouraged to go in for modernization.

Germans Build for Speed.

SO THE U. S. army continues to use the French 75 millimeter field gun. It is light and can be drawn by horses. But the Germans, forgetting about horses, have developed an 105-millimeter gun which shoots farther than the 75. Mounted on motors, it runs circles around the horse-drawn French artillery.

In fact, everything in the German army is built for speed. That is the secret of Nazi victories. Officers are picked because of their ability to produce speed, many of them from the air corps. Goering, head of the army, was a World war aviator, later head of the air corps. General Von Falkenhorst, commander of the Nazi troops in Norway, is an aviator. In Norway he commanded not only the aviation, but the German army and navy.

In the U. S. army this is unheard of. For years the air corps was the step-child of the army. Its officers were not considered fit to command troops. This was true also in the French and British armies. For years, the younger French officers have chafed at old-fashioned methods of their septagenarian commanders.

But in the U. S. army there are few General Bishops, and those at the top have been older than the French; older in methods rather than years.

* * *

One Anti-Air Gun.

TODAY the most modern anti-aircraft gun used to protect London and Paris is the 90-millimeter. Of this type of gun, the U. S. army has exactly one. And only 50 to 60 are provided for in the 1941 appropriation bill. The army has 448 3-inch anti-aircraft guns, but in Europe these are considered almost obsolete.

Real secret of the army's stagnation is the promotion system. It is based entirely upon the time when a man walked into a recruting office during the last war, or graduated from West Point. The sole basis for promotion is length of service.

An officer may be the most brilliant youngster in the army, or the laziest. It makes no difference. He keeps his rank until a sufficient number ahead of him die off. Then he is promoted.

The effect of this on army morale is devastating. There is no premium on efficiency. There is no impetus for outstanding ability. Every officer knows that if he keeps reasonably sober, is not absent without leave, leaves his company accounts straight and lives long enough, a certain number of years will see him promoted. If he works harder he will not be promoted faster. If he tries to work out new plans for mechanization and motorization it will not hasten his advancement one iota. He merely has to wait.

It is this system of promotion by inertia that has contributed so materially to the present somnolent state of our military defense. And building a billion-dollar edifice of national defense upon the faulty foundation of personnel inefficiency is like throwing good money after bad.

The army has some superb officers—in fact, some of the finest in the world—and if given free rein they could build up a real national defense. But they are bogged down and sapped by the system that surrounds them.

What the U. S. army needs is a surgical personnel operation, not the mollycoddle bill in congress which merely retires colonels who have reached the age of 60.

A Young Family

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

WE DINED—my wife and I—with Jack and Polly at their cabin in the woods. The road to their place is a hilly one, with forest on both sides, and frequent vistas of beautiful view, for they are high. The log home which the young couple built for themselves is almost out of sight on the wooded hillside below the road. It is easy to find them, though, for their mail box is big and white, and the telephone wires lead in.

The one-room cabin is built of poplar logs chinked with clay—"until the timbers are seasoned," says Jack. "Then we'll knock out the mud and put in cement." The ends of the logs and the frame of the mammoth window of tiny panes at the front have been primed with red paint. The effect is so gay that the wee log house looks like a real life illustration for a picture book. The wide window has bright drapes and a border of growing plants and vines.

Opposite the window a fireplace chimney hints at heat and ventilation. A wide side porch, in process of being screened, overhangs the hill among the treetops. "We'll cook and eat out here," Polly explained. "Just now everything is in one room. Come right in!"

Their baby girl hung in her canvas swing from a rafter above the couch. She is eight months old—a dark-eyed, laughing rolypoly with just one tooth. A wall cabinet containing Jack's collection of pottery hung above Polly's sewing machine in one front corner. A portable oil cookstove was in the other corner beside the window, with the kitchen cabinet beside it and a midget sink between the two. A wrought iron table was laid in front of the window. On a small dresser a portable radio that runs with electric current, or without; on a side table a telephone, also portable—"one of our extravagances," Jack explained, "but it's worth the money."

We sat upon a couch beside the fireplace and asked "But where do you sleep?"

They laughed. "Climb up, stick your head through the floor, and see our bedroom!" No sooner said than done. Jack brought a step ladder from the porch and opened a trapdoor in the ceiling. "We'll have a folding ladder here, in a little while," he said. "Just now, we go up one at a time and take turns pitching the baby up. Take a look."

I climbed on top the ladder and thrust my head through the floor above. A pair of coiled springs topped by an innerspring mattress make a very comfortable bed, right below the roof. The baby's square deep basket stood beside it.

"We have ventilation—a big screened window—and we can hear it rain, up here," explained our host. "I sleep close under the eaves, but if I say my prayers, I seldom bump my head on the rafters."

We had steak grilled on the log fire, french fries, fresh tomatoes, strawberry shortcake and coffee.

"We've been married nearly two years," Jack said. "Our home is small, but it's paid for, and we've had fun."

"Many folks, longer wed, have less to show," we told him, as, from her mother's arms, the baby clapped chubby hands.

QUINS REACH 6TH BIRTHDAY

Day Opens on Solemn Note As Sisters Pray for Peace on Earth.

tea party with one big birthday cake and a little pat of ice cream.

Born prematurely, the youngsters enter their seventh year in excellent physical condition. They enter, too, a new phase of life.

Now the kindergarten stage ends and the children begin primary class studies. They also are embarking on instructions in their Catholic faith and Father Pilon of their home parish of Corbeil, expects that they will have advanced far enough in the fundamentals to receive first holy communion late this summer.

Their birthday revives the question of a reunion with the balance of the family. Oliva Dionne still presses that point but his attitude and that of Mrs. Dionne have changed somewhat toward the situation.

Once bitter against the safeguards erected by a well-meaning government, which served practically to bar them from their famous little daughters, they now appear to recognize the value of all that has been done and to accept philosophically all the restrictions.

They still want the quints restored to them but they are no longer resentful or bitter. Now it is more a dream to be realized some day than an issue to fight for.

Mrs. William Hahn, 458 Springmill, reported that while she and a guest, Mrs. F. V. Flaugher, 45 Willow street, were talking in the living room, someone entered the house, between 9:30 and 10 p. m., and took two purses from the top of the buffet. Mrs. Hahn's purse contained $5 in cash and $5 worth of toilet articles, while Mrs. Flaugher's had $1.50 in cash and $23.50 worth of personal articles, including a gold bracelet, according to the report.

Two Ohioans Charged With Concealing Alien.

MALONE, N. Y.—(U.P.)—U. S. customs officers today held two Ohio youths charged with harboring and concealing an alien in the rumble seat of their automobile as they returned form Montreal to the United States.

The youths told U. S. Commissioner Ralph R. Levy that they were William Gesling, 29, Lancaster, O., an engineer, and Grover E. Nash, jr., East Canton, O., a college student.

Officers claimed that James M. White, Toronto, Ontario, was concealed in their automobile and was discovered at the Trout river customs station.

DIVORCE GRANTED

ASHLAND — A decree of divorce has been granted in common pleas court here to Helen Baker from Don Baker, after the defendant was declared to be guilty of gross neglect of duty.

He Thinks Judge Can't Do It, But Judge Has Answer

"You can't do that to me; I'm on parole," Harry Black, 30, of 179½ North Main street, complained yesterday after Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston sentenced him to the Ohio penitentiary.

But Judge Huston had a prompt answer to that one.

"I've already done it. Take him out," he said, and the case ended there.

Black was sentenced to one to three years for non-support after he failed to comply with requirements set up by Judge Huston several months ago.

Black was right about the parole, however, for he was released from the penitentiary about a year ago after serving a term for forgery.

Judge Lora instructed the jury to return a verdict for the paper as he accepted a motion made by defending counsel after Effinger's attorneys had rested his case yesterday.

The court agreed with the paper that libel had not been proved in the plaintiff's case.

Effinger contended his reputation was damaged by newspaper accounts of a grand jury investigation four years ago into the affairs of the secret order.

Tests of World-Famous Hospital Show How To Help Nature Produce Her Own Gentle, Complete "Daily" Bowel Action!

NEW YORK: Constipation sufferers rejoice! For now violent cathartics and laxatives and harsh "roughage" products, many of which are habit forming and are often irritating to bowel lining—can be avoided.

You can now actually help Nature produce her own gentle, complete "daily" bowel movements—thanks to the patient study of 16 Scientists.

You see if waste matter in the colon isn't kept moist it becomes hard, dry, caked and results in constipation. These scientists discovered that a "little daily dose" of Kruschen actually keeps this waste matter moist, soft and easy to expel. Also acts as a mild antacid and kidney diuretic.

There is no nausea, no griping, no violence with Kruschen. Hospital tests report: "Kruschen can be taken for years without having to increase the dose." Inexpensive! Honor Founders at Dinner at Women's Club; Mrs. Middleton Serves as Hostess to Group.

DELTA KAPPA GAMMA MEMBERS celebrated their second birthday, and honored the founders of the educational sorority last night at a dinner party at the Women's Club. There were 18 members and one guest received by Mrs. Ambrose Middleton, hostess. Dinner was served at a T-shaped table decorated with red roses and greenery, and lighted red tapers in crystal holders.

The centerpiece was formed of individual birthday cakes topped with two tiny lighted red candles. Favors and place cards carried out the sorority colors of crimson and gold.

Miss Elsa Reintz, second vice president of the Alpha Zeta chapter at Port Clinton, was the guest.

The Founders' day program was in charge of Miss Reba Robinson. A contest was held in which baby pictures of the members were shown and identified. The prize winners were the Misses Ruth Dunham and Virginia Howard.

Bridge was played at four tables with Miss Lucille Lorow and Miss Robinson winning the prizes. The committee on arrangements included the Misses Leona Snyder, Clara Patton and Anita Strauch. This was the final session of the year. Members will resume activities in the fall.

RECEIVE INVITATION.

Members of the Mansfield Business and Professional Women's club have been invited to attend the 10th birthday party of the Ashland club to be held June 3 at 6:30 p. m. at the Otter hotel. A special program is being arranged for the affair. Miss Catherine Riggs, transportation chairman, is in charge of arrangements.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, May 29.

A particularly lively and enterprising day is presaged from the lunar and mutual configurations. The mind will be quick, alert and prone to jump into new and very constructive channels, where aggressive action may hasten progress, with rich results, but there are certain dangers involved, with elements of trickery, misrepresentation and downright dishonesty. In the personal relations there is definite augury of much social, affectional and domestic excitement, with probably romantic adventure. Be wary of small accidents.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a very lively and enterprising year, with much stirring in both business and personal relations. The mind will be keen for new ventures and the energies under aggressive stimuli, but avoid dubious, treacherous and illicit entanglements. There are strong auguries for romance, social and emotional stresses, with affairs moving in such direction at high tempo. In this be vigilant as to slight accidents.

A child born on this day should be splendidly endowed for an active, creative and adventurous life, with its personal as well as business life giving much pleasure and gratification.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

There was no answer for my speculations as to Philip Veritzen's thought processes in the great impresario's face after his first, patently intentional look of gloating amusement at me. When next I ventured a glance at him, this time from under carefully lowered eyelashes, so that he could not possibly guess that I was scanning his countenance, he was his usual imperturbable self, leaning slightly forward in the chair he surprisingly had taken, his eyes occasionally glancing at the other players, but for the most part fixed on his young daughter-in-law.

Was Mary conscious of that scrutiny? My own eyes searched her face, and decided that she had reached the point where she did not know anyone was watching her. She was no longer Mary Veritzen, she was the woman whose emotions she was enacting Absorbed in her role, living it before our eyes, I realized that I was witnessing one of those rare dramatic performances, the hope of discovering which gives the theater its gripping fascination for its devotees.

So taken out of myself was I by her performance, surpassing even the best effort she had given me while in training, that the rehearsal was almost half over before I remembered that Philip Veritzen had expected me to charge my memory with any criticisms of the renditions or business on the part of the members of the cast which I might deem necessary. I tried faithfully to obey his injunction when Mary was not in action, but found very little to criticize. The members of the cast, what Dicky would term "able citizens, all," were palpably "on their toes," to keep up with the exceptional performance which Mary was giving them.

It was Stephen Redfield's face which intrigued me most. The handsome young leading man, who had looked at Mary with the appraising look of one calculating how he could best strengthen his own role at the expense of hers, was now gazing raptly at her—there was no other word for the expression on his face, and the look sent a queer little thrill of fear down my spine

For in the handsome leading man's eyes there was the beginning of something which I had seen before when masculine eyes were turned on Mary Noel's face had worn that look, so had the face of young Prince Georges of Trees. So in less pleasant, more bestial fashion, had I seen Jack Leslie regarding Mary

Was Stephen Redfield falling in love with Mary.

I had to admit to myself that young Mr. Redfield had every excuse for his feeling. There was something breath-taking in her beauty, as well as in her performance She was Desirable Woman incarnate, but—I was very glad that Noel, while able to hear the rehearsal from my little study adjoining the library, and to see Mary, could not see the faces of the other actors.

Involuntarily my eyes went to the study door. To my horror, I saw that it was slightly ajar.

MISFITS COST DEARLY

The more you play, the more you will fear misfitting hands and try to protect yourself against them. The worst kind of all is the two-suiter misfit, in which each partner has shortage of the two suits held by the other. That usually means that one opponent will be ready to slaughter two of the suits and the other one can murder the other two. Such hands do not even work well at No Trump, for not one of the four suits breaks well enough to bring in its little cards.

5 ♣	Dbl	5 ♦	Dbl
5 ♠	Dbl	6 ♥	Dbl

All seven bids made by the unfortunate partners were wrong. North should start with only 1-Club. But after 2-Clubs, South should bid 2-Hearts with his one honor trick. However, after his first mistake, North should merely rebid at 3-Clubs. After the double of 5-Clubs, South's safer call, if he decided to bid at all, would be his higher-ranking suit at 5-Hearts, so he could show the diamonds more cheaply. North's 5-Spades on his three cards is very bad. South's bid of higher ranking hearts after that is worse, since it might force North to 7-Clubs. North's 6-No Trumps merely lays on the trouble; 7-Clubs would have saved something from the wreck.

Those North and South hands, together with the bidding, were sent in by South from Toronto, Ontario, Canada, asking for criticism and saying: "Until your reply comes, the writer, as punishment for his bidding, is supposed to walk only through the back streets." Where is North? In a dungeon somewhere? He is far the greater culprit. The side went down seven, and we filled in some East-West hands just to make it look natural.

Minimum bids of clubs, diamonds, clubs again, hearts, then clubs a third time should have ended the bidding at three or four of the club suit.

Garden Graph

CHRYSANTHEMUMS FROM CUTTINGS

Gardeners who go in for chrysanthemums have undoubtedly noticed that nursery plants added from year to year are healthier, more vigorous and give more luxurious bloom than divisions made from their own clumps. The reason is that rooted cuttings of chrysanthemums "break" far better than do suckers on their own roots; that is, they make more branches and, in consequence, become bushy plants covered with bloom.

Cuttings can be made from chrysanthemums when the best stems are four to six inches long. As shown in the accompanying drawing, take cuttings below a joint and then remove the two lower leaves. Cuttings can be set out into a cold frame with a glass cloth cover or in a flower pot, flat or pan, in a cool basement. New growth will start in about three weeks, an indication that the cutting is well rooted.

If the weather is warm when growth starts on the cutting, much time can be saved if each cutting is then transplanted into a thumb pot of good soil, and not set out in the garden until the roots fill the little pot.

Belgium Surrenders After 18-Day Battle

British Plan Withdrawal From Flanders But Admit Terrific Obstacles Bar Retirement Across Channel

Dunkerque has been the main supply base for feeding munitions, food and equipment to the desperately pressed Allies in the battle of Flanders.

Between 250,000 and 500,000 Belgian troops were lost to the Allies through Leopold's "unprecedented" command, which heightened the already crucial danger of more than half a million French and British soldiers battling against encirclement in northern France and Belgium.

The Belgian premier, Hubert Pierlot, said in Paris that his king's decision to surrender—made against the unanimous advice of his ministers—would not be confirmed by the Belgian government.

"The act of one man does not commit the entire nation," he declared.

French military sources called Leopold's order "personal treason."

London, grim over the latest news from the war front, conceded that the outlook was "very serious."

Although the military picture remained confused, the Germans seemed to be concentrating all their power in a drive to cut into two segments the Allied forces enmeshed in Belgium and northern France.

Making a new stand north of Valenciennes, French troops fought back at German thrusts heading east toward Ypres and southwest toward Lille. The Nazis already had crossed the Lys river at several points and were said to be threatening Ypres.

Having widened the bottleneck of their main salient between Peronne and Arras, other German forces swept through to strengthen their units around Calais, just 22 miles across the channel from Dover. The Germans claimed Calais already had fallen, but the French did not concede the loss of the city.

Both sides declared their warplanes were ranging the battle areas, bombing enemy troop movements and lines of communication.

The French said the Germans apparently were throwing tremendous numbers of men, tanks, planes and guns into the fight and were paying a terrific price in casualties for their gains.

Britain kept on making herself ready to beat off the invasion Germany has threatened.

Sir Edward Grigg, war office undersecretary, said 400,000 volunteer "parashooters" had been organized to fight any German parachute troops landed in England.

On the economic front Britain followed up moves for better trade relations with Russia by prohibiting importation of cotton from the United States and other non-Allied countries, as of May 30. The cotton order was to save foreign exchange and shipping space.

Britain Gathers Forces To Break Nazi Ring of Steel

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Britain gathered her forces today for a supreme effort to break the German ring of steel around her expeditionary force in Flanders, now deprived of the support of Belgium's surrendered army on the northern flank.

Naval spokesmen indicated that withdrawal of the British army from the Belgian battlefield was under consideration, but it was admitted that great dangers would be faced in any attempt to bring it out by way of the heavily bombed channel ports.

Prime Minister Churchill and his war cabinet met for an hour and 45 minutes at Ten Downing street.

The government was silent, however, concerning any moves it was likely to make, particularly since such decisions are up to field commanders.

Alfred Duff Cooper, minister of information, in a broadcast to the nation, said "I don't think we should attempt at present to pass judgment" on Belgium's capitulation.

"We know that the Belgian army has been fighting very bravely against tremendous odds," he said. "The situation in which the B. E. F. consequently finds itself is one of extreme gravity."

The Evening Standard, owned by Lord Beaverbrook, minister of aircraft production, took a less kindly view, and called King Leopold's surrender "a savage, treacherous blow" to the Allied cause.

Naval spokesmen who witnessed the embarkation of British troops at Boulogne under "hellish fire" before the city fell to the Germans, said the units in Belgium would face terrific obstacles in attempting to withdraw across the channel.

The Royal Air Force already is heavily engaged. It was officially credited with "destroying or seriously damaging" 79 German planes yesterday, which the air ministry said was the "best day since the invasion of the low countries began."

The communique said 50 German planes were seen to crash and 29 more flew away disabled. Fourteen British Hurricanes and Spitfires were reported missing, but the air ministry said "some of the pilots are believed to be safe."

Capitulation of the army of King Leopold was regarded in some quarters as the gravest news of the war.

The gravity with which the news was received was emphasized by the way it was spread across the front pages of the evening newspapers.

News of the capitulation came hard on the heels of blunt and frank word to the British people that the battle situation in Flanders had become one of "utmost gravity."

To meet the challenge the government stepped up its fighting strength by calling men of the ages of 28 and 29 for military service. The move was expected to add 600,000 men to the armed forces and raise Britain's army to the 3,000,000 mark.

At home the government proceeded with preparations for any eventuality by forming a force of 400,000 civilian volunteers to help the regular army tackle any invaders who may come by parachute and by dividing the country into 800 self-contained food areas so that inhabitants may obtain food supplies in the event that certain sections are cut off by invaders.

Germans Report New Break In French Border Defenses

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN—A new break through French border fortifications "on a broad front" was announced by the German high command today as Belgium's army laid down its arms on command of its king.

The communique reported heavy fighting against the Allies "embittered resistance" which, it said, was partly broken with Nazi legions advancing within six miles of the Belgian city of Bruges, crossing the Scheldt canal west of Valenciennes and capturing the French towns of Orchies and Douai, south of Lille.

"The big battle in Flanders and Artois has reached a climax," it said.

"Our troops, in a sharp attack, partly broke the embittered resistance and hemmed in the encircled enemy armies into an ever narrower area into which the airforce also, with strong units, worked destructively."

"The fight continues against the encircled British and French."

Nazi forces had "gained ground rapidly" against the Belgians, the communique said, and "in recognition of its hopeless situation, the Belgian army, under the leadership of its king, in strength of about 400,000 to 500,000 men laid down arms."

By capitulating, Leopold saved his throne so far as the Germans are concerned.

Adolph Hitler was reported "profoundly stirred" both by the soldierly attitude of the Belgian king and at his political wisdom in capitulating when, in the German view, further resistance was hopeless.

In some form or other, assuming Germany is victorious, Leopold would be permitted to continue functioning as king, informed sources predicted.

The German ground gains, accompanied again by sharp air and naval blows, included the French towns of La Bassee, Bourboug, Hazebrouck and Merville.

Fierce Allied resistance on the southern front was indicated by the high command's report that in one repelled attack, 30 Allied tanks were destroyed.

A Nazi torpedo boat was credited with sinking a 3,000-ton transport and, the communique said, an aerial bomb scored a heavy hit on an Allied destroyer in the English channel.

Renewing raids on harbors at the back of the trapped British and French armies, the Germans said they bombed the waterfronts of Zerbrugge, Nieuport, Ostend and Dunkerque during the night.

Germans generally hailed King Leopold's decision as a prelude to collapse of the main line of resistance of the Allied army of 1,000,000 men in Flanders.

The Fuehrer's headquarters said the surrender was "unconditional."

King Leopold himself asked for the armistice, said an announcement issued by the high command from the headquarters of Fuehrer Hitler.

The announcement stated King Leopold had "accepted the German demand of unconditional capitulation."

Later a second announcement was issued stating that the Belgian king had reached his decision against the wishes of the majority of his government, which is sitting in Paris. The Belgian government was charged with being chiefly responsible for the "catastrophe," and it was said it still seemed inclined to obey orders of "English-French employers."

The Fuehrer issued orders for King Leopold and his "bravely fighting soldiers" to be accorded the respects due them, and it was announced that a Belgian castle—the location not given—would be provided for the king as a temporary domicile until the question of permanent residence may be settled.

Churchill Declares Britain Will Carry on 'With Vigor'

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Prime Minister Churchill told commons today in a brief war statement that the British and French would ignore the capitulation ordered by King Leopold of Belgium, and would carry on with all vigor.

Adding that the Belgian ministers had declared themselves the only legal government of that country, he pointed out that they had determined to continue the war despite the king.

"Nothing which may happen to us," the prime minister said solemnly, "in this battle can in any way relieve us of our duty to defend the world cause to which we have bound ourselves."

A thunder of cheers arose then in the house.

Surrender of the Belgian army, Churchill went on, had appreciably added to the "grave peril" of the British expeditionary force in Flanders but the troops were nevertheless in good heart although beset on three sides and from the air.

Cries of "shame" went up in the old halls of the house on the announcement of the capitulation.

Churchill told the house he expected to make a statement on the general situation when the result of the "intense struggle now going on" is known and measured.

But "this perhaps will not be until beginning of next week," he said.

WIFE SLAIN

Barber Pleads Innocent to Lorain Murder.

LORAIN — (U.P.) — John Minoff, 28, south Lorain barber, pleaded not guilty today to a first degree murder charge in the death of his wife, Natalie, 21. He was held for the grand jury without bail.

Police accused Minoff of striking his wife with a flat iron and then cutting her throat with a razor. They said he halted a police cruiser to tell of the deed. Mrs. Minoff died shortly afterwards in a hospital. She had been seeking a divorce.

PRESIDENT SAD

News of Surrender Comes as Blow to White House.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — President Roosevelt today received with sadness the news that King Leopold had surrendered the Belgian army to the Germans.

Commenting on the capitulation, Secretary Stephen T. Early voiced the president's reaction with the remark that "these are sad days."

Women committee members bid for more recognition last night and it was agreed that some of them will be named on a county advisory committee to work with the central and executive committees. Earl McFarland, district member of the state central committee, suggested that three women be appointed to the executive committee, but his proposal was amended to limit them to the advisory group.

Approximately 60 of the 92 central committeemen attended last night's session at the courthouse. A. F. Porter was temporary chairman.

TRAFFIC NORMAL

No untoward incidents have been reported in North Africa, and there are no Italian troop concentrations on the border of Tunisia, a spokesman said.

LANCASTER—(UNS)—The first degree murder trial of Robert E. Lee, Norwood, Mass., youth accused of beating Alex Stromstead, a tailor, to death with an iron bar during an attempted escape at the Boys' Industrial school a year ago, was expected to be placed in the hands of the jury of eight men and four women late today.

Ejected From Membership In LaFayette Escadrille.

PARIS—(UNS)—The Trench and Air Association of American Volunteers, composed of combatants in the French army from 1914-1918, today ejected Col. Charles A. Lindbergh from honorary membership because of his speech criticising President Roosevelt's war defense address recently.

An official statement issued by the organization characterized Lindbergh's speech as an "insult" to the memory of the LaFayette Escadrille. Lindbergh was made an honorary member after his flight across the Atlantic.

SIX KILLED

Two Officers and Crew of Four Die In Crash.

MARCH FIELD, Calif.— (AP) — Two officers and a crew of four in a Douglas bomber were killed last night in a crash near Mojave, Calif.

One man, Sergt. John B. Stewart of Midway, Ala., survived the crash but he was injured seriously. He was flown to the General hospital in San Francisco early today.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.
